WAAC VANGUARD MOVES IN; 600 MORE DUE TODAY

Fort Des Moines, Ia., July 19.—As the sunset gun boomed thru the quiet air of this old cavalry fort at dusk today, eight women in khaki strolled across its emerald green parade ground.

The simultaneous firing of the gun and the stroll of the women was not pre-arranged, but it was a fitting coincidence, for the boom marked audibly a turning point in the military history of America.

The eight women, two of them members of the Negro race, were the first of their sex to wear the khaki of the United States army. They wore it officially, as the first members of America's new women's army auxiliary corps to go into uniform.

25,000 to Be Trained.

The WAAC came into visual being today when 200 women, vanguard of 25,000 to be trained here in the next eight months—enough to release the equivalent of two divisions of men for active combat duty—arrived at this first American army camp for women. By midnight tomorrow, when the camp officially opens, 600 more will be on hand to complete the first contingent.

All day long they drifted in—by train, by motor and by bus, in a most unmilitary array. One came in black chiffon. One wore bright orange slacks with a pale blue blouse. Some wore French heels. Some were bare-legged and in sneakers.

They came from as far south as Florida, as far northwest as Montana, as far southwest as New Mexico. One had been a research chemist in New York. One had been a member of the Ohio legislature. One had been with the treasury department in Washington. One had been editor of a research magazine. Another had practiced law for 10 years.

Widows Among Recruits.

Many had hair streaked with gray. One had hair of burnished gun metal. Three had bright red hair. Several wore wedding rings. One, a lovely frail blonde of 23, is the wife of a naval lieutenant. Another is the widow of an army lieutenant. Six were Negroes, part of a company of 40.

By noon, 59 were in camp, marching awkwardly two by two to company mass, testing the resiliency of army cots, looking out over the peaceful green stretches of the parade ground with its ancient, sheltering elms, racing up and down their barracks stairs in the gay silk and cotton house coats that tomorrow they will abandon for a delft blue seersucker.

By 5 p. m., 83 were here, their names printed to their bright civilian dresses, ready to get into line to march to evening mess, and the night train that brought Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, director of the WAAC, on her first official visit to the corps she commands, brought another 125.

Greeted at Station.

A crowd of 500 civilians and army officers gathered at the railroad station to greet Mrs. Hobby and her cohorts. Signs, "WAAC, retain your baggage checks" and "WAAC, gather here," were posted on the station walls. Army trucks were lined up to take the girls to camp.

Mrs. Hobby, the extraordinarily pretty young woman now having the rank of a major and the silver eagles of a colonel, received a howling ovation as she stepped off the train, her entrance to Des Moines given an unmilitary but very feminine flourish when she tripped on the final step. She was spruce and trim in her khaki uniform with the gold head of Pallas Athene, insignia of the WAAC, on her jacket lapels and stiff visored cap. Col. Don C. Faith, commandant of the post, and Col. Thomas Harwood, post surgeon, welcomed her and rushed her to the camp in an army car.

Tomorrow the show really starts. The WAAC's already in camp will

READING THE WORLD'S FUTURE IN HIS PALMS

Jules Verne Air Armada Urged to Foil U-Boats

Portland, Ore., July 19 (AP).—Henry J. Kaiser, west coast shipbuilder, today proposed turning nine of the nation's shipyards over to production of giant aerial freighters. The proposal was made in a speech at the launching of the Harvey W. Scott, a Liberty ship.

Kaiser said that in fleets of such flying ferries lies the answer to the growing submarine menace which is nurturing "a haunting fear" that movement of supplies and arms to our soldiers in many parts of the world will eventually be cut off.

He said that altho Kaiser engineers have on their boards plans for air boats "beyond anything Jules Verne ever could have imagined," having 200 and 500 ton capacity, capable of carrying up to 1,000 troops, the urgency of the moment demands that the submarine problem be solved at once.

Losses Exceed Construction.

Kaiser's speech followed a warning by Rear Adm. Howard L. Vickery, vice chairman of the Maritime commission, that the united nations were losing ships faster than they could build them.

[Submarines sink two more ships in American area. Details on page 8.]

Vickery said it is getting difficult to deliver building materials to the shipyards as rapidly as workers can construct ships. He said material available would supply only existing yards and that was the reason the commission yesterday canceled a contract with a New Orleans shipyard for 200 ships.

Example of the Mars.

"There is already a flying ship which is very large compared with anything known to be in mass production," Kaiser said. "I refer to the Glenn L. Martin ship known as the 'Mars'—a flying boat of 70 tons, capable of carrying a pay load of 14 tons.

"That ship would carry 100 men fully equipped. Five thousand of them could land 500,000 equipped men in England in a single day. And the next day they could fly over again with 70,000 tons of fresh milk, beefsteak, sugar, and bombs. No submarine could shoot them down.

"The experience of this war shows without question that such transport fleets cannot be interfered with by enemy fighters if they have even a minimum of protection. Our ferry service to Britain goes thru with hardly a loss. And such a gigantic ferry service as I see—headed to whatever part of the world our President and high command would designate—would be the safest method of mass travel ever used in wartime."

5,000 Boats a Year.

Kaiser suggested that the Maritime commission turn over three of its west coast yards to the mass production of the flying boats, and do the same with three other yards on the gulf, and another three on the east coast. He expressed the opinion these nine yards in full production within 10 months could turn out these giant flying boats at the rate of 5,000 a year.

"The Maritime commission has done a remarkable job with sea ships," said Kaiser. "It can do a still greater job with sky ships. Not only will this war be terminated by sky ships; the postwar world will be won by them also—the greatest battle, the battle that is coming with the peace."

2,800 Nazis Killed in Year by Russian Sportswomen

MOSCOW, July 19 (AP).—The soviet press reported today that Russian sportswomen, including the best known swimmers, jumpers, boxers, and skiers, have killed more than 2,800 Germans and wrecked many railways in a year as guerrillas.

FAMOUS McCUTCHEON CARTOON IN COLOR

On the back page of today's issue appears an enlargement of one of John T. McCutcheon's recent and most significant color cartoons, "One of the Hardships of War." It emphasizes the importance of writing to homesick soldiers and sailors as a means of maintaining morale, and is reproduced at the request of men in the service.

In all issues of tomorrow's Tribune will appear reproductions of two color photographs of a famous torpedo and bombing plane, the Grumman Avenger. Planes of this type were used with great success against the Japanese at Midway Island, and have been described as the "world's deadliest torpedo planes."

CRAZED BULLDOG ATTACKS WOMAN

Victim May Lose Her Arm; Neighbors Terrorized.

A bull terrier, crazed by the loss of her owner who was buried Saturday, yesterday badly mauled and critically injured a woman resident of the apartment building in which she was kept and terrorized a neighborhood before veterinarians and police captured her.

Miss Gladys Mowry, 42 years old, a punch press operator and part time caretaker of the apartment building at 2115 Warren avenue, went to the basement flat occupied by Walter Brinkman to put it in order. She knocked and called, but heard no reply, so opened the door and started inside.

Breaks Woman's Arm.

She was met by the charging animal. The dog seized Miss Mowry's right arm between the elbow and wrist and caused a compound fracture. Screaming and fighting the maddened animal, which continued to rip and slash at her arm, Miss Mowry rushed to a fenced courtway outside the apartment. There the dog attacked her again, causing serious injuries to her left arm.

Brinkman, who had been at the rear of the apartment, rushed out with a bucket of water, drove the beast away, and put Miss Mowry over the fence and followed her as the dog charged again. Police took Miss Mowry to County hospital, where Dr. Leonard Weinstein, resident fracture specialist, said he doubted whether he could save her right arm.

Owner Died Last Week.

Policemen James Keating and Maynard White then returned with a veterinarian from an animal hospital at 2534 Madison street. The dog was roaming the enclosure and terrorized neighbors had locked their doors. With a 5 foot pole and noosed rope the policemen and the doctor seized the dog.

The owner of the dog was Christoff Brinkman, father of Walter, who died last week. Brinkman said the dog had been trained to protect the flat and would charge any one who picked up anything in the room.

DESCRIBES HOW AUSSIES REWON RIDGE IN EGYPT

Tribune Writer Tells of Three Battles.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EL ALAMEIN, Egypt, July 19.—The Australians had what they described to me as an extremely quiet day yesterday and a quiet night topped it off.

The quiet day for the Australians consisted of forming up before daylight and going out in the cold early morning—don't let anybody tell you that early morning isn't cold in the desert—to attack thru heavy shellfire and recapture a ridge they had twice taken in the previous two days and twice been shelled off. They took it the third time and held it despite heavy shelling and dive bombing. They are still there.

No counterattack by the axis forces materialized and the Australians seemed almost disappointed.

Sees Battle from Knoll.

I stood on a knoll behind their positions at sunset and watched the artillery at work, but for the first time in many days there were no sunset air raids. On the ground only the artillery was in action, but I could see huge columns of dust and smoke as the American Boston bombers, working on time table schedule, dropped devastating loads of explosives on the enemy. Thru field glasses I could see vehicles scattering rapidly on the distant ridges as the bombs burst.

Several pillars of thick black smoke that lingered long after the dust clouds had settled showed that some of the bombs had hit trucks or tanks.

The desert plain in front of us faded away into a purplish dust haze. It was only thru the gaps between the bursting bombs and shells that we could distinguish our forces from the enemy. Enemy artillery also was in action. The reddish flashes of the axis' guns were followed seconds later by spurts of dust and smoke on the plain where British trucks with ammunition, fuel, and supplies were plugging along the desert tracks leaving long telltale plumes of white dust.

Soldiers Play Soccer.

Once as airplane engines sounded overhead I saw a group of soldiers near by running furiously. I thought they were seeking to dodge an enemy dive bomb attack. Then I saw a soccer ball bounding ahead of them and discovered that they had started a game for something to do. The ground around where they played was littered with shell and bomb fragments.

It was in this area that the British made such a rugged stand and even pushed back the German tide. El Alamein is only a railroad station in the midst of the desert near the coast. The only buildings are the station and the sheds around it. Tel el Eisa [Hill of Jesus] is only a knoll less than a mile across and rising 75 feet above sea level with a railroad flagstop beside it.

Australians on Coast.

The Australian positions run in a belt about two and a half to three miles wide along the shore and extend some eight miles south and west of El Alamein station.

The latest series of Australian attacks that have kept the initiative on the British side began Thursday morning. At break of day they ad-

TELEPHONE CALL GOES WRONG — TURNS INTO BALTIMORE AIR ALARM

Baltimore, Md., July 19 (AP).—Air raid alarms sounded in Baltimore and surrounding counties this morning as the result of a misdirected telephone call. Residents' reaction was one of curiosity.

The eastern Defense Command Public Relations office announced that a Salisbury, Md., airplane spotter reported thru a Baltimore operator that he had observed an army plane.

The office said this report, instead of being routed thru the local filter center, was sent directly to the Baltimore office of civilian defense, with the result that the alarms were sounded.

"People didn't seem alarmed," Pinkney W. Williams, secretary to the board of fire commissioners, said.

NAVY SCORED FOR HIDING STRENGTH OF FOE IN ALASKA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 19.—The Japanese campaign against the Aleutian Islands, "instead of being a sideshow, is a first class effort of the Japanese to take over those American possessions," Anthony J. Dimond, Alaskan delegate in congress, said tonight in urging again that a unified command be established in Alaska to direct military and naval operations.

Anthony J. Dimond.

While the army has an Alaskan command, with headquarters in America's northernmost territory, the navy's headquarters which supervises naval operations in Alaskan waters is located at Seattle, Wash., too remote, according to Dimond and others advocating a unified command, for successful operations.

Dimond also raised the question of why the navy is just now letting out information on the potency of the Jap forces which invaded and are still occupying the westernmost Aleutian Islands of Attu, Kiska, and Agattu, where, according to a navy communique issued Friday, the Japs have erected temporary housing for troops.

Size of Force Revealed.

Delayed dispatches on the occupation, now being cleared by the navy a month after the action, indicate, said Dimond, the big naval concentration sent by the Japs to take the islands and "plenty and plenty" of Jap troops involved.

"Why wasn't the public informed before of the size of the Jap invading forces?" asked Dimond. "Certainly, the Japs knew the size of their own forces, so there was no point in withholding this information."

"I hope the high command doesn't underestimate the importance of Alaska," he continued. "I'm somewhat less worried since the army and navy seem to be taking Alaska more seriously. However, we've got to do more than we've attempted to do to get the Japs out of the Aleutians.

Opposition Is "Traditional."

"The communique indicates we inflicted some damage on the enemy, but the truth remains that they still hold Attu, Kiska and Agattu. Every time the Japs take over another island it is the equivalent of another land-based aircraft carrier, which must be taken away from them," he continued.

Dimond said he supposed the high command was doing the best it could under the circumstances, with demands on them for aid to China, to Egypt and the Russians. But, he said, the Alaskan position is still of supreme importance.

The opposition to a unified command in Alaska appears to be traditional, asserted Dimond. "But so was chattel slavery," he added, "and that was done away with thru a war."

The army and navy at first belittled the occupation as inconsequential. However, the navy on Friday issued its first complete communique on the Aleutians, describing American bombing of the Jap forces and the sinking of three Jap destroyers and one transport, in addition to damaging four cruisers, three destroyers, one gunboat and one transport. The communique revealed that the initial Jap forces which attacked the Aleutians in early June consisted of two small aircraft carriers, two seaplane tenders, several cruisers and destroyers and from four to six transports.

MIXED BATHING IN NUDE GIVEN NAZI APPROVAL

BERLIN, July 19 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German radio announced today that Heinrich Himmler, in his capacity as chief of the German police, would henceforth permit mixed bathing without bathing suits.

"Men and women may bathe nude alone or in mixed groups provided their behavior does not offend the feeling of common decency," the radio said, quoting Himmler's decree.

It recalled that nude bathing recently had been permitted in Germany only in special enclosures.

REDS CONTINUE TO ADVANCE IN VORONEZH AREA

MOSCOW, July 20 [Monday]—(AP).—Russian troops have evacuated Voroshilovgrad, only 100 miles north of Rostov, but a stiffened Red army still was gaining ground at Voronezh to the north and was slowing up another main German drive south of Millerovo, the soviets announced early today.

The loss of Voroshilovgrad, claimed by the Germans on Friday, meant that a German drive southeastward along the Donetz river was threatening to merge with a Nazi column striking south of Millerovo along the railway leading to Rostov, the key Red army southern anchor protecting the Caucasus.

The soviets had announced yesterday that American and British built tanks as well as planes were bolstering the Russian lines in the imperiled south where an eastward Nazi push toward Stalingrad had been stopped.

Taken by Supporting Column.

The Germans, blocked in eastward thrusts toward the Volga river from Voronezh and Millerovo, wheeled southward along the railway toward Rostov while a supporting column 60 miles to the southwest swept into Voroshilovgrad.

The midnight communique said that, aside from the loss of Voroshilovgrad, the Red army still was inflicting heavy blows on the Germans in the other two areas.

At Voronezh the Russians killed 1,000 more Germans, and fought their way into the streets of another town which the Germans had captured in their original break-thru. Soviet tanks were supporting these infantrymen in the street fighting now raging in that village.

The Russians abandoned Voroshilovgrad the largest city of the Don basin, to avoid a German encirclement threatened by the drive south from Millerovo.

Defend Line to Stalingrad.

The soviets apparently now are defending an east-west line north of the Pervozvanovka-Likhaya-Stalingrad railway which is about 75 miles north of Rostov. Likhaya is the junction point on the north-south railway linking Millerovo and Rostov.

A war bulletin today said the Nazis lost 211 planes in last week's fighting. Russian losses were listed as 136 planes.

Probably the bloodiest battles the world ever has known swept the lower Don basin cities and villages between Millerovo and Rostov.

It was on the extreme southern sector, pointed like a dagger at Rostov, that the most furious fighting raged. There a mass of German tanks had found a soft spot in the Russian defenses and forced a break in the center of the salient.

Create a Flank Menace.

Dispatches said the Germans had created a flank menace after the break south of Millerovo but that the situation was now in hand. A small river was crossed but most of the German vanguard was contained.

The river crossed was not named, but it could have been the Donetz, which flows southeastward between Rostov and Millerovo to a confluence with the westward flowing Don about 65 miles east of Rostov. Several of its tributaries cross the path of the German march, however.

The Germans were reported using every weapon in Hitler's arsenal, employing parachute troops to try to envelop the Russian rear, spread confusion, and cut communications. Batteries of flame throwers were turned upon fixed positions of the Russians when these were encountered.

Hurled Back Across Don.

Blow upon blow was rained on the Germans and their Hungarian puppets on the upper Don at Voronezh where the Red army was cleaning up an area between the Don and the Voronezh rivers which the foe had infested. The Germans were reported hurled back across the Don to the western bank in several sectors and driven from more populated points.

But the peril to Voronezh still was great. Dispatches said the Germans were throwing fresh reserves into the battle either to check the Russian successes or to renew their effort to take the city and push on to the middle Volga, 300 miles beyond.

The Moscow radio announced that

PRESS FREEDOM: HOW GESTAPO DRIVE PERILS IT

Pressure Applied to Help Chicago Organ.

The first amendment to the Constitution of the United States—"Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech or of the press."

Despite this rampart of protection for one of democracy's key institutions, government has devised ways to by-pass the Constitution and to attempt the domination of newspapers it has been unable to control. These methods are set forth in this and subsequent articles in this series.

The country editor looked in amazement from one to the other of the two agents from the Federal Bureau of Investigation who came into his office. They were attempting to intimidate him into voting in favor of granting the Associated Press service to a new Chicago morning newspaper competing with THE TRIBUNE. Then the newspaper man's jaw squared.

"Down here in Little Egypt we don't scare worth a damn!" he said.

The experience of this southern Illinois editor was duplicated last winter many times over from one end of the country to the other.

A little army of "G-men," who should have been sent out to catch spies, saboteurs, and fifth calumnists, was ordered to lay down a barrage and advance the private interests of the new proadministration newspaper in Chicago. The techniques of Goebbels were employed.

Threaten Woman Editor.

Shortly after the invasion of Little Egypt, two brawny FBI agents walked into the office of the woman editor of another downstate paper. The woman's husband had gone into the army and she was struggling to carry on the family enterprise while he was in the country's service.

The agents frightened this woman with threats of an anti-trust prosecution when they learned her paper had already sent its proxy to the annual Associated Press meeting in opposition to the administration's desires in the matter.

Panicky, the woman wrote to her husband at camp to find out whether she was going to jail.

When a Tribune Syndicate salesman strolled into the office of another editor to discuss purely business matters, he was told the FBI had been there only a short time before. This man was so disturbed by the incident that he took the Tribune representative to a basement room and locked the doors before he felt safe enough to talk freely.

Reports Agent Shame-Faced.

Still another publisher described the agent who visited him as being shame-faced and apologetic over his unusual mission.

"During the conversation the agent admitted that this checking on proxies was the first instance in which the FBI had ever been ordered to do work of a political nature—and he didn't like it, but said orders were orders," related this newspaper owner.

While the FBI army was descending on home newspaper offices, the generalissimos were busy at the top. The department of justice was threatening the directors of the Associated Press with prosecution—civil or criminal—on the ground of violating the anti-trust laws.

Aim to Set Stage for Meeting.

This "campaign of fear," as one editor characterized it, was designed to set the stage for the annual membership meeting of the Associated Press in April at New York City. Action on membership applications for various papers was on the agenda for that session.

The Associated Press is a great world-wide news gathering organization, with important features and its famous wirephoto service. In the growth of the Associated Press, THE TRIBUNE has played an important rôle for many years. It was the heavy financial contributions of a few papers including THE TRIBUNE, which made possible the building up of the photo service, the split second transmission of pictures over the wires.

When the New Deal organ, which is printed on presses owned by the secretary of the navy, came into being last fall, it began to make demands for the A. P. service, altho it already had one world-wide news service. Negotiations for the purchase of the old Herald and Examiner morning A. P. franchise, which was still kept alive and held by Hearst interests in Chicago, fell thru and the campaign to gain a favorable vote of the general membership was launched.

Four-fifths Vote Required.

But there was another wrinkle still to be ironed out, in the opinion of the administration strategists. That was the provision in the by-laws of the A. P. which required a four-fifths vote of the membership, present or voting by proxy at the annual meeting, for admission of a new member and acquisition of the rights to the A. P. services.

Under threat of an administration crackdown, the directors came before the annual meeting with a suggested revision of the by-laws to permit election of a new member by bare majority vote. A formula also was inserted for payment to the member or members affected in the same field amounting to 10 per cent of the total amount of regular assessments paid for A. P. services since 1900, or not less than three times the current annual assessment, whichever is higher.

This was devised in order to place a value on A. P. property rights.

Application Rejected, 684 to 287.

On the first day of the two day meeting the members voted to change the by-laws, with the shadow of prosecution hanging over their heads.

Then the second day came the vote on the application of the new administration organ in Chicago. A total of 971 ballots was cast, including proxies, and the final tally was 684 against admission and 287 in favor. One New York newspaper man, observing on the sidelines, remarked that the overwhelming vote showed you could push editors only so far.

Department of justice activities behind the scenes were revealed to the membership by J. R. Knowland of the Oakland, Cal., Tribune, who presented the board of directors' resolution. Members realized full well the pistol of prosecution never would have been pointed at their heads had not the administration deemed it necessary to use coercion rather than to have allowed events to follow their normal course.

Sidesteps Chicago Issue.

"At this annual meeting the Associated Press confronts the most important problem that has arisen since its organization in 1900," Knowland told the 650 members assembled at the meeting. "That problem is the revision of its by-laws in conformity with the view of the department of justice, officially expressed in written communications and personal interviews."

Politely sidestepping the Chicago issue, Knowland said it was "the desire of a number of publishers to share in the Associated Press services" which resulted in the government's investigation of the by-law provisions governing membership.

"The board does not believe it exaggerates the danger to the whole structure of the Associated Press should such action be brought to determine whether those provisions are in conflict with the law," Knowland went on. "Such an action could be brought by the department either as a criminal or civil procedure, or by an individual in a civil action."

Warns of Grave Effects.

Successful prosecution of such litigation might have grave effects on the A. P., according to Knowland, and, therefore, it had been decided to amend the by-laws to meet government objections and still give protection to members.

Knowland then read a letter from the department of justice declaring that the four-fifths provision in the by-laws excluded competitors and exercised undue restraint within the purview of the anti-trust laws. Correction of the procedure lay with the association, the letter said.

It was revealed the letter followed personal interviews in which officers of the A. P. were notified the by-laws violated provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Referring to the doubts of some members that the department of justice had the right to take action, Knowland cryptically observed:

"Personally, I am a realist. I am not blind to recent tendencies of the courts."

Another A. P. director, E. K. Gaylord of the Oklahoma City Oklahoman, asserted he didn't "care to be indicted and don't want to see the A. P. indicted."

Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, referred to the FBI pressure on both board and individual members after the by-laws change was voted.

"The heat was put on," he said. "The FBI men were sent to talk with the members. There were threats of indictment and of court action. Yesterday we considered the threat of indictment more than we did the welfare of the members. Yet what we have done is probably as good as we could have done under such coercion. We are now freed from that threat of prosecution and can now devote ourselves to our own urgent problems."

First Meeting Under "Coercion."

For the first time in the history of American journalism the Associated Press board had met under "coercion," Col. McCormick added.

Eleanor Patterson, publisher of the Washington [D. C.] Times-Herald, disclosed a department of justice official had attempted to recruit her in the fight against the A. P. The proposal was that Mrs. Patterson send a member of her staff around the country to get some complaints from newspapers which wanted A. P. memberships and then the department would guarantee to break the A. P. "monopoly."

Mrs. Patterson said she came from four generations of newspaper people and "didn't like the smell of it." She refused to act. Mrs. Patterson is the granddaughter of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's founder, Joseph Medill; sister of Capt. Joseph M. Patterson, publisher of the New York Daily News; and cousin of Col. McCormick. An application of Mrs. Patterson for A. P. service for her paper was voted down at the same meeting, 514 to 242.

$250,000 Offer Inadequate.

Thomas J. White, publisher of the Chicago Herald-American, told the meeting the administration organ's offer of $250,000 for the A. P. franchise held by Hearst in Chicago was inadequate. A total of $1,300,000 had been paid for the morning membership and $100,000 for Sunday, he explained.

"There was nothing lax or subversive in not accepting the offer," said White. "FBI officers questioned me for 45 minutes and I explained the situation satisfactorily to them."

White sent out letters to the A. P. membership in opposition to the granting of the new membership. THE TRIBUNE sent out no letters of solicitation, its only activity being a canvass of the members.

THE TRIBUNE's 3,500 employés were represented at the A. P. meeting by Arch Ward, sports editor, who told the assembled editors that Marshall Field III., publisher of the administration paper, was selling advertising space at "give-away" rates and all his own newspaper wanted was that "competition be clean, wholesome, and fair."

In Position to Take Losses.

Ward also argued the other morning paper was accepting abnormally high circulation returns at a total loss of "a couple of million dollars a year." He pointed out Field could stand this because 80 per cent of his losses would be made up by savings in income taxes in the upper brackets.

After the vote was announced, Col. McCormick expressed the hope that "the Gestapo is out of American newspaper offices forever." He said some of the members were so apprehensive they asked the ballots be burned so they would not fall into the hands of the FBI.

Another important phase of the administration offensive against THE TRIBUNE was the attempt to defeat Col. McCormick for reëlection as a director of the A. P. This drive was headed by Archibald MacLeish, head of the government's Office of Facts and Figures.

Vitriolic Attack by MacLeish.

MacLeish was asked to go to the A. P. meeting by Attorney General Francis Biddle. Hustling to New York, MacLeish appeared before the gathering and delivered a vitriolic attack on Col. McCormick, Capt. Patterson, and Mrs. Patterson. But Col. McCormick was overwhelmingly returned to the board.

As for the administration's attempt to wangle the A. P. service for its Chicago spokesman, the last chapter has yet to be written.

The directors were told recently that if they granted the A. P. service immediately to the administration organ — pending adjudication of the matter — the government would file only civil action under the anti-trust laws. If they refused, then criminal proceedings would be started against them.

Mrs. Lucretia Olney with her daughter, Carol Mae, after their reunion yesterday.

Carol Olney, 6 years old, started from Sunday school for her home at 1219 North Clark street yesterday, but it took her several hours to get there. Carol doesn't know how it happened, except maybe that she boarded the wrong street car. Anyway, police found her, dressed in her Sunday best, at State and Randolph streets. In one hand she held a street car transfer, in the other a pamphlet from her Sunday school. She couldn't remember her right address, so police kept her in the matron's quarters until her mother, Mrs. Lucretia Olney, reported her missing, and was told where she was.

MICHIGAN AVENUE AT RANDOLPH

F. D. R. AND FARLEY GIRDING FOR 1944 POLITICAL BATTLE

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 19.—The skirmishing of the 1944 Presidential election battle has begun and President Roosevelt is in the thick of the fight. Folks are wondering whether it is the rumblings of a fourth term candidacy they are hearing from afar.

Thomas E. Dewey.

Mr. Roosevelt and his erstwhile political manager, James A. Farley, chairman of the New York Democratic state committee, are engaged in a desperate struggle for control of the Democratic organization in that state and the selection of delegates to the 1944 Democratic national convention.

A similar contest is in progress on the Republican side between Thomas E. Dewey, candiate for the Republican nomination for governor of New York, and Wendell Willkie. If Dewey should be nominated, as seems probable, and elected, he would become at once a formidable aspirant to the Republican nomination for President in 1944.

Willkie Undecided on '44.

Mr. Willkie, who, it will be recalled, was the Republican candidate for President in 1940, is not sure that he wants to run again in 1944. But he does know that if Mr. Dewey should be governor of New York two years hence the Willkie candidacy would start with a handicap. Nobody was surprised, therefore, when Willkie began manifesting opposition to the nomination of Dewey on the ground that Dewey is or was an isolationist.

The Willkie opposition was pumped up until a propitious moment was reached for a mass movement to draft Mr. Willkie as an internationalist candidate for the nomination for governor against Mr. Dewey. By that time Mr. Dewey had a good head start in the race and anyway the draft Willkie movement failed to strike fire. So Mr. Willkie said he didn't want to be governor anyway and begged his friends to desist.

President Started Late.

Like Mr. Willkie, President Roosevelt got a late start in the effort to overturn what appears at the moment to be a foregone conclusion. But Mr. Roosevelt has the advantage of being President of the United States and the political power he wields is so imperious that he may well succeed where Mr. Willkie failed.

For weeks Jim Farley had been quietly rounding up Democratic state convention delegates for the nomination of New York's attorney general, John J. Bennett, for governor.

The big fly in the Farley ointment, however, was the coolness to Bennett of the American Labor party, without whose support no Democrat can be elected governor of New York. Mr. Farley came to his old buddy in the White House for aid.

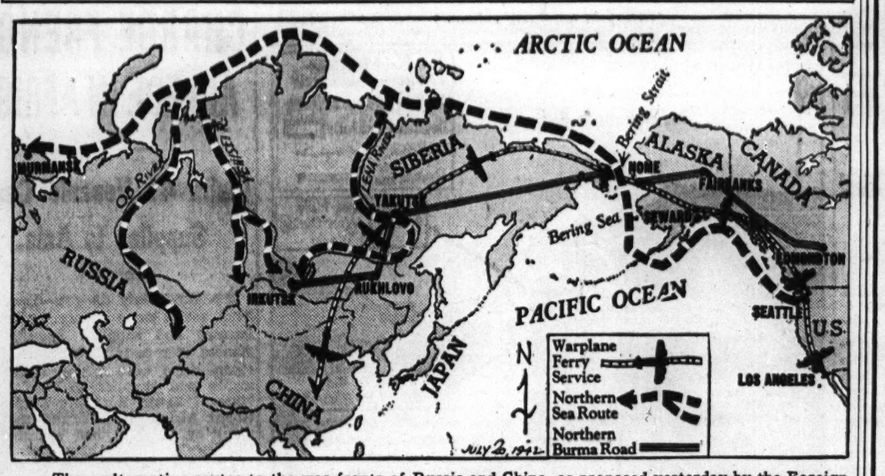
F. D. R. Cool to Bennett.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, was cooler than a carload of cucumbers not only to Mr. Bennett, but to Mr. Farley, who went away smiling, but empty handed. Then came to the White House Congressman Michael J. Kennedy [D., N. Y.], leader of Tammany hall, and Edward J. [Paving Blocks] Flynn, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and went away with the Tammany chieftain announcing that "the President says he will support any liberal candidate selected by the leaders of New York state, provided he has supported his [the President's] war policy 100 per cent before Pearl Harbor."

This formula, said Messrs. Flynn and Kennedy, eliminated Bennett, but qualified Sen. James M. Mead [D., N. Y.], whom Mr. Roosevelt favored.

The Presidential machine gained its first success yesterday when the Cattaraugus county Democratic committee switched its support from Bennett to Mead.

Three Proposed Routes to Distant Battlefields



Three alternative routes to the war fronts of Russia and China, as proposed yesterday by the Foreign Policy association in Washington, D. C., which said all three would be "shorter and less vulnerable to axis attacks than the present routes to north Russia and thru the Persian gulf."

SOUTH MOBILIZES TO RESCIND BAN ON LIBERTY SHIPS

New Orleans Aroused; Blames Politics.

New Orleans, La., July 19 [Special].—New Orleans tonight began a battle to have the federal government reconsider its order canceling a war shipbuilding contract with the Higgins corporation yards here. The demand for restoration of the contract was spreading thru many southern states.

The cancellation, ordered by the United States maritime commission, threw 10,000 men out of work here yesterday and halted work on a contract under which 200 Liberty cargo ships, of 10,500 tons each, were to be constructed by the Higgins corporation, at the rate of one a day beginning Nov. 1. The commission said the contract had been canceled in order to divert all available steel to the construction of ships at plants already in existence.

Appeals to Roosevelt.

The city and state governments, organized labor, civic groups, and Negro organizations, however, blamed politics, sectional jealousy, and selfish interests for the order.

Mayor Robert S. Maestri of New Orleans sent a telegram to President Roosevelt and the senators from Louisiana urging immediate reconsideration of the order.

Gov. Sam Jones urged Donald Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, to use his influence to get it rescinded.

Union representatives at a meeting tonight planned a huge mass meeting to protest the shutdown of the $65,000,000 ship building project. Union members paraded after adopting resolutions demanding all the facts back of the contract cancelation.

Protests from Negroes.

Clarence A. Laws, executive secretary of the New Orleans Urban league, asserted in a wire to President Roosevelt that the cancellation is "the worst blow to Negroes in Louisiana since their disenfranchisement almost 50 years ago."

At the offices of the Higgins corporation it was said a maritime commission representative will arrive tomorrow to begin liquidation of the project. Work on the contract so far has cost the government $10,000,000, it was said.

Andrew Jackson Higgins, president of the corporation, said the shortage of steel advanced by the maritime commission as the reason for the cancellation is a mere pretext.

Washington, D. C., July 19 (AP).—The Foreign Policy association said today that Japanese occupation of western Aleutian Islands and threats to existing communication lines between the United States and Russia made imperative quick development of other supply lines.

The association, a private research organization, said there were three potential routes, "shorter and less vulnerable to axis attacks than the present routes to north Russia and thru the Persian gulf."

They are a warplane ferry service from the west coast of the United States, via Alaska, to Russia, a northern Burma road, which would link the railhead above Edmonton, Canada, with the railhead at Irkutsk, in Siberia, by motor road with a Bering strait ferry, and a northern sea route linked with the three principal Siberian waterways—the Ob, the Lena, and the Yenisei—each several thousand miles in length.

OFFICER'S WIFE ROBBED.

2,000 Hours Lost Dolling Up War Plant, British Say

LONDON, July 19.—Swank to impress a general and other high army officers during a visit to a Shropshire war factory has cost the nation 2,000 working hours, it was disclosed tonight. As a result a complaint has been lodged with the war office that a team of army officers prepared the factory for inspection and used it as a "showpiece."

HOW AUSTRALIAN ARMY REGAINED RIDGE IN EGYPT

Shelled Off Twice; Third Attack Succeeds.

vanced and took their first objective by 7:30, a little knoll four miles southeast of Tel el Eisa station. Then they went on to the second ridge, two miles southwest. Tel el Eisa was and still is no man's land, being under the guns of both sides.

Shelled off the second ridge the Australians retired finally to their starting point. Friday, before daylight, they tried again.

With a grimly silent bayonet attack and without artillery support they sowed panic among the axis troops and took their objective almost without resistance. Artillery drove them out again but they had made a net gain of many prisoners, nearly all Italians.

They withdrew to a line only a mile and a half from the railroad and paralleling it. Despite these withdrawals they went in again early yesterday morning and took the point again. This time they held it.

Hurl Back Axis Attacks.

CAIRO, Egypt, July 19 (AP).—British advances in all three of the main battle areas along the 40 mile front of the western desert, were reported today. The British also threw back axis counterattacks by tanks and infantry in the center of the battlefield some 75 miles west of Alexandria.

In the northern sector, along the coast and a few miles inland, the Australians remained in full possession of positions won during the week. Further, they occupied points on Makhad [Cushion] ridge, which is the first of two ridges south of Tel el Eisa [Hill of Jesus].

Gain Ground in South.

In the center, Indian soldiers were reported making a slight forward movement along El Ruweisat ridge. The imperials in the southern sector, near the salt marshes of the Qattara depression, gained fresh ground by following up a small enemy withdrawal.

Dust storms restricted air operations, but the British said fighter bombers on two occasions attacked widely dispersed vehicles and during the night heavy bombers attacked Tobruk.

Claim 30 Tanks Destroyed.

ROME, July 19 [from Italian broadcasts]—(AP).—The Italian high command reported today that 30 British tanks had been destroyed during the last few days on the El Alamein front in Egypt, where fighting yesterday was described as local in character.

The Italians reported their air force was active during the day, knocking out several dozen British motor vehicles in daring low level attacks. Five British planes were said to have been shot down over the African front and three more over Malta.

TOBRUK CALLED ROMMEL NOW, BRITISH LEARN

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY AT EL ALAMEIN, Egypt, July 19 (AP).—The Germans have renamed Tobruk and now call it Rommel in honor of the field marshal who captured it.

The British learned of this today from one of Rommel's staff officers who was captured in the last 24 hours. An order changing the name and signed by Marshal Goering was found in the possession of the captured officer.

[The renaming of Tobruk has not been announced from Berlin.]

PLANS PREPARED FOR UNIVERSAL ARMY TRAINING

Washington, D. C., July 19 (AP).—War department officials and Rep. James W. Wadsworth [R., N. Y.] are studying a permanent program of universal military training, it was learned tonight, and a bill to authorize it may be ready for congress in January.

Wadsworth, one of the authors of the present selective service act which expires after the war, estimated that 1,000,000 men 18 to 21 years old could be trained annually, but emphasized that the program was still in the study stage and "we don't know yet or how much of a permanent standing army we will have to maintain after this war."

Wadsworth said he thought "people have learned the necessity of being strong at all times" and that parents of selectees had written him to say "how pleased they were with the way the army had improved their sons physically."

VESSEL DAMAGED IN CRASH; REPORT TWO OTHERS SUNK

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, July 19 (AP).—A freighter, damaged in a lower St. Lawrence river collision in which two other ships were reported to have been sunk, limped into port here today with a crumpled bow. The mishap was said to have occurred in a patch of "thick weather" Saturday. Reports here said there was no loss of life, and that crewmen from the two ships which were sunk were now on their way to another eastern Canadian port by train.

Auchinleck Uses a Jeep to Direct Battle in Egypt

LONDON, July 19 (AP).—Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck, who has taken over personal command of the British 8th army in Egypt, has been directing the El Alamein battle from a jeep in the field, a military commentator said today. The commentator quoted an officer's report from Egypt as saying that he "found Auchinleck rushing about the battlefield in a jeep flying the Union Jack, dining under the stars, and sleeping under a map truck."

RUSSIANS RENEW CHARGE FRENCH AID FOE IN AFRICA

Claim 41 Vessels Carry Supplies to Axis.

MOSCOW, July 19 (AP).—Tass, official soviet news agency, today reiterated and supplied specific instances of reports that French merchant ships were taking reënforcements and supplies to Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's armies in North Africa. It indicated that as many as 41 ships had operated in this service during May and June. [Vichy has issued denials of similar reports in the past.]

The Tass story, bearing a Geneva, Switzerland, dateline, said neutral observers had carefully verified the reports and that a person connected with the French naval administration in Marseilles confirmed that sailing records did not show the frequent voyages of French ships to Sfax, Tunisia, near the Libyan border.

Get Cargoes at Toulon.

It said Marseilles port records showed that during May and June 53 ships sailed from there, only 12 of them being under charter to French or Spanish shippers, while the others were listed as sailing empty for Spanish or Algerian ports.

Actually, it said, at least 20 of these ships, including four large transports of 10,000 tons each, went to the French naval base at Toulon, which is under German guard, and picked up cargo.

Some Sail to Italy.

As one example, Tass said, the 3,500 ton French transport Saint Helene sailed ostensibly for the Spanish Morocco port of Ceuta but actually went to the French naval base at Oran, Algeria, took on provisions which it delivered to Gabes, Tunisia, and returned to Marseilles on June 26 with 270 wounded German officers.

Just by KEEPING WELL You can help win this war!

What you do about your own health at home may be every bit as important as what you could do by flying an army plane or driving an ambulance at the battlefront.

Nearly a third of our physicians and nurses are being called to the colors. We must help the remaining doctors, help the Army and the Navy, and most of all help ourselves to keep healthy and strong on the home front.

It's EASY to keep well

Make a resolve right now to do your part—the most important part. Read the five simple rules in the next column. Ask yourself every day whether or not you are living up to them.

Here's some advice from Mr. Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator, Chairman of the Manpower Commission:

"Every man who gives his physician a chance to prevent his becoming ill, and then does his utmost to keep himself well, is striking directly at the heart of one of our serious production problems. Nine-tenths of industrial disability is caused by disease and injury not associated with occupation."

Send 5 cents to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C., for "Bill gets the works." It is a little booklet that tells you some things you ought to know about keeping well. Ask for Workers' Health Series No. 6.

FOLLOW THESE 5 RULES

Memorize these five keys to good health. Follow them carefully—for your own welfare and for victory.

1. Eat right

Milk, butter, eggs, fish, meat, cheese, beans and peas, fruit, green leafy vegetables and the yellow ones, whole-grain or enriched cereals and bread—these are the key foods. Eat plenty of them. And eat 3 meals a day!

2. Get your rest

Regularity counts most. You can't catch up on lost sleep or missed relaxation! Try to keep on a regular schedule every day. Take it easy for a little while after lunch and dinner. Go to bed on time, get up on time.

3. See your doctor once a year

You have your car checked and serviced every thousand miles. Do as much for your body. Physicians can prevent many diseases and illnesses for both children and grownups nowadays. Give your doctor a chance now, BEFORE you get sick. Go to see him!

4. Keep clean

5. "Play" some each day

Romp with the family, visit with friends, take walks, play games—or do whatever you like to give your mind and body a change from the daily grind on the job. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

Life insurance has provided the means to keep millions of Americans in health and security. This message is one way life insurance companies believe they can help you to help win this war. Institute of Life Insurance, 60 East 42nd Street, New York City.

GEN. MacARTHUR TELLS PRESS HIS VIEW OF THE WAR

Talks Two Hours, but All Off the Record.

All Quiet in Pacific

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, July 20, Monday—(AP).—The allied headquarters daily communique said today: "Activity in all sectors was limited to reconnaissance."

BY JACK TURCOTT.

[By Wireless to The New York News and The Chicago Tribune.]

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, July 19.—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's views of the entire World war picture and the southwest Pacific areas in particular were told today by the commander in chief during an extremely frank two hour off the record talk to more than 100 correspondents and editors.

It was MacArthur's second press conference since his arrival here. The first was held March 23.

Dressed in his usual splendor, with 11 rows of ribbons on the left side of his tunic, MacArthur paced the small room with an unlit cigar between his fingers and outlined what he considered were allied advantages and disadvantages thruout the world, answering all questions with surprising freeness after assurance that everything was off the record.

Uses Sports Terminology.

As is the custom with an avid sportsman, MacArthur occasionally illustrated his points with a simile of prize fighting or baseball, and made frequent references to his experiences in World War I., when he was chief of staff of the 42d division in France.

When the conference concluded, C. P. Smith, managing editor of the West Australian, Perth newspaper, said: "General, I have come farther than any man in this room to hear you. I have traveled more than 2,000 miles one day to attend this conference. I am returning immediately, but before leaving I want to say it was well worth coming."

Flyer Gets a Red Face.

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, July 19 (AP).—Lieut. James F. Ward of Kirksville, Mo., credited natives of New Guinea today with saving his life in a plane crash and bringing him home in regal style, but said they embarrassed him by stripping him in front of the whole tribe.

Ward, son of Col. J. Frank of Fort Benning, Ga., was shot down by the Japanese over a native village. He made a crash landing in a clearing. Papuan natives dragged him unconscious from the wreckage.

"When I came to, there was a crowd of native men and women around me and I didn't have a stitch on," Ward related.

"I'd got covered with oil and they were washing me off. As soon as I realized what was happening I was pretty embarrassed, and got them to give me back my clothes.

"I had a big lump on my forehead and a wrenched back, but no broken bones. The natives fed me, carried me to an outrigger canoe, propped me up in a deck chair like a king, and took me to an allied base."

Praises Coral Sea Teamwork.

Jacksonville, Fla., July 19 (AP).—Football or war, it's teamwork that brings victory, says Lieut. Fred "Buzz" Borries, who as a halfback won football honors with the naval academy eleven and as a fighter pilot got in some good licks at the Japs in the battle of Coral sea.

The youthful flying officer, who sparked a mediocre navy eleven to an upset victory over a strong army team in 1934, was with a fighter squadron aboard the carrier Lexington.

He took off twice against the Japs, landing only when he needed more fuel and ammunition. But on the last trip it was impossible for him to return to the Lexington, so he flew to another American carrier.

Borries, assigned to the Jacksonville naval air station's auxiliary Lee field to instruct fledgling navy flyers, said "tales of the Lexington will be oft repeated in years to come—but the Japanese navy won't be interested in hearing them."

COMEBACK DRIVE ROUTS JAPS FROM 4 CHINESE TOWNS

Breaks Foe's Grip on Railway, Ports.

CHUNGKING, China, July 19 (AP).—A smashing comeback against the major Japanese drives in Chekiang and Kiangsi provinces was reported today by the Chinese high command. It confirmed recapture of the Chekiang seaports of Wenchow and Juian and announced the breaking of the invaders' grip on the Kiangsi railway along a 15 mile stretch by seizure of Iyang and Hengfeng.

The Japanese pulled out after suffering heavy losses at all four points, a Chinese communique said, and the Chinese seized large quantities of booty. All Chungking was elated at the news, hailing it as the best in weeks.

The Japanese took Wenchow on July 11, following up quickly with the capture of nearby Juian, in a drive which extended across coastal Chekiang province southward from the Japanese base at Hangchow, just south of Shanghai.

Drive Jap Survivors Northward.

The Chinese command announced that the counterattacking Chinese broke into both cities on Friday, killing many Japanese and driving the survivors back northward.

The Japanese fled from Hengfeng yesterday, setting fire to the town and breaking thru a Chinese cordon to escape eastward toward Shangjao, 35 miles away, the communique said. The Chinese quickly reoccupied the town and extinguished the fires.

Iyang fell after the Chinese attacked from several directions. The final smash carried the Chinese thru the north gate of the walls yesterday, and the town was taken early today.

Seize City After Five Day Fight.

To the north, in southern Honan, the Chinese reported another success, saying they seized the town of Yenshan yesterday after a five day battle and from that vantage point were hurling shells into the nearby Japanese base of Sinyang. The location is, roughly, midway between the Yangtze and Yellow rivers.

This battle is continuing, but the Chinese have increased the enemy's problem by launching a sudden blow at Chantaikwan, on the Peking-Hankow railway north of Sinyang.

20,000 ARMY AIR CADETS SOUGHT IN CHICAGO AREA

Twenty thousand young men from the Chicago area are needed for the army air force, Fred B. Snite, vice chairman of the newly organized Air Force Sponsors of Chicago, composed of leading merchants and business men, announced yesterday.

The group will launch its drive for cadets during a luncheon Wednesday in the Merchants and Manufacturers' club in the Merchandise Mart. Among the guests will be pilots and crews of an air cavalcade touring the nation to boost war bond sales and army air force enlistments.

The cavalcade, composed of a captured German Messerschmitt, two British fighters, the Spitfire and Beaufighter, and several American planes, will fly over the loop at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday, Snite said. The planes will be exhibited at Sky Harbor Wednesday and at Chicago airport Thursday from noon to 8 p. m.

Japs Assert They've Sunk 59 Allied Submarines

TOKIO, July 19 [from Japanese broadcasts]—(AP).—Imperial headquarters announced today that 59 enemy submarines were sunk and 38 others damaged by the Japanese from the start of the war to July 10.

[There has been no confirmation of such claims from any other source.]

NAZIS BATTLE RAF BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE OF NEW TYPE

LONDON, July 20 [Monday]—(AP).—The royal air force sent its bombers over Germany last night, it was stated authoritatively today, after Sunday daylight attacks on objectives in German-occupied Lille and Bethune and along the Breton coast. On the home front, the government said that "during the hours of darkness there was nothing to report."

In yesterday's sweep along the Breton coast, squadrons of Spitfires and Hurricanes dived on German warships, hitting the bridge of one armed vessel and bombing a new-type enemy minesweeper.

Two Bostons [a Douglas type] and one fighter were missing from the sweep in which power stations at Chocques and Mazingarbe also were hit, authoritative sources said. A German fighter was destroyed.

The air ministry said the planes encountered a new type of German anti-aircraft fire, quoting a returning pilot:

"We were met by fierce light Flak of a new type. This came up vertically. It was white and looked like rockets. We also saw heavy anti-aircraft fire from shore batteries."

Bomb East Anglian Town.

While the bulk of the royal air force remained grounded, German planes dropped bombs in East Anglia yesterday morning, killing several persons and causing some damage.

Other enemy raiders appeared over a northeast coast town, but fled when British fighters rose to the challenge. No bombs were dropped and a report that one raider was shot into the sea was not confirmed.

Returning Saturday from the third successive daylight stab at the German Ruhr, a huge Lancaster bomber shot down a Messerschmitt-109 and damaged a Focke-Wulf-190 near the Dutch coast, the air ministry reported.

Red Planes Bomb Germany.

BERLIN, July 19 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—Russian and British air attacks upon both eastern and western Germany were reported today by the German high command.

[It was the first soviet attack reported on German territory in several months.]

The Nazi communique said the soviet air force last night made ineffective harassing attacks with minor forces against several places in East Prussia."

On the west, the Germans said, single British bombers yesterday dropped bombs over various districts. "The civilian population suffered losses, particularly in Duisburg," the communique said.

Authoritative quarters said Nazi bombers attacked a small convoy off Littlehampton, on the English south coast, yesterday.

WILLKIE ASSERTS SCORN OF NEGRO IS IMPERIALISM

Los Angeles, Cal., July 19 [Special].—Wendell Willkie today told the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People America cannot fight forces and ideas of imperialism abroad and maintain a form of imperialism at home.

"We are learning," he said, "the test of a people is their aim, not their color. Race and color do not determine what people are allies and what people are enemies in this struggle.

"The attitude of white citizens toward the Negroes has undeniably had some of the unlovely and tragic characteristics of an alien imperialism—a snug racial superiority, a willingness to exploit an unprotected people."

U. S. ARMY NEGRO UNITS STATIONED IN NORTH IRELAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 19.—United States colored troops, fully equipped and armed, are stationed in Northern Ireland, it can now be disclosed. Most of the troops' officers are white. These troops, many of whom are said to be more than six feet tall, will build and maintain all kinds of military establishments. They are, however, also trained as fighters. The Ulster population gave them a warm welcome as they landed and marched to waiting trains.

YANKS TEACHING BRITONS TO SAY 'THAT'S A NIFTY!'

ut They Still Applaud a Pop Fly.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 19.—The American uniform daily becames a more familiar sight in London and other cities of Britain. And with characteristic candor and friendliness, American soldiers have been exceptionally successful in breaking thru the traditional British reserve.

From the swankiest West End hotels and restaurants to the smallest and humblest cafés and pubs one encounters American soldiers mixing with British patrons and other united nations' men. They are all doing considerable sightseeing on buses and long walks. They have shown a particular eagerness to visit historical landmarks.

The immediate result of the presence of Americans here has been the popularizing of American softball. A headquarters company has started a league of six teams and the games played at Hyde park are drawing an increasing number of spectators.

Learn Baseball Slang.

Today, for instance, a game in which the marine corps defeated a headquarters company, 11 to 1, attracted from 3,000 to 4,000 Britishers, who are beginning to pick up American baseball patter. They show some indication of a lack of understanding of the game. Today, for instance, one dignified Britisher shouted "well done" when a batter knocked a high fly which was caught by the second baseman. He intended to cheer for the batter.

Now one hears amid such cries as "well caught" and "good hit" such Americanisms as "attaboy," "that's a nifty," and "nice going."

The reactions of American soldiers to their first sight of London do not vary much. Corp. Robert H. Schultz, 1456 63d street, Chicago, who is attached to headquarters staff here and plays on the headquarters team, finds London much like the cities back home. As the buildings are small he sometimes finds it difficult to appreciate that this is the most populated city in the world.

Girls Are All Alike.

English girls, he said, are the same as those back home. English band leaders all play the same style, and really hot "boogie woogie" is hard to find.

His comment on the tower of London and Westminster Abbey is "very interesting."

Reveille for Schultz is sounded at 6:15 and is followed by a half hour drill, breakfast at 7, lunch at 12, and dinner at 7 p. m. He was an auditor of an Illinois life insurance company when he was drafted in March, 1941. After four months of basic training he was posted as a clerk.

Americans in Church.

American uniforms were seen among the morning service today at St. Paul's in "thankful remembrance of the work of the royal navy and merchant navy" which was commemorated in all churches. Rear Adm. Alan G. Kirk, chief of staff to Adm. Harold R. Stark, represented the American navy.

Three British admirals as well as Sir John Laurie, lord mayor of London, heard a sermon preached by the Very Rev. Dean W. R. Matthews.

SANTA FE GROUP HONORS TRIBUNE WAR CASUALTY

Nearly 200 Santa Fe railroad employés paid tribute yesterday to Pvt. Richard W. Graff, former Tribune employé who was killed in action in the Philippines, in a flag raising ceremony sponsored by the American Legion's C. C. Cameron Jr. post, made up of Santa Fe and Surface lines employés, at the 18th street Santa Fe yard. Legion gold star certificates were presented to members of Graff's family.

Col. Thomas Davey, past commander of the Forges post of the American Legion, and charter member of the Legion's Illinois department, presented the certificates to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graff, the soldier's parents, and Mrs. Cecelia Graff, his widow. Other immediate members attending were the soldier's sister, Jeannette, and three brothers, Edyard, Frank J., and Harry.

Graff, who was 28 years old, was killed Feb. 3 while serving as radio operator and tank driver in the Philippines. He enlisted in the army in January, 1941, after being employed 11 years as an advertising order clerk in the Tribune's service department. He was the first casualty among Tribune employés in the present war.

The War on the Russian Front

Captions on the map tell developments reported yesterday from the Russian front, where the Reds were said to have stemmed the German advance in some sections.

REDS YIELD CITY TO NAZI THRUST TOWARD ROSTOV

Voroshilovgrad Given Up; Gain at Voronezh.

the Russians had captured "an important German crossing" over the Don, and said that south of Voronezh a soviet unit had captured "an important inhabited locality" after a three-day attack.

A battle for another Don crossing was reported now going on. A counterattack by the Hungarian 6th and 7th brigades supported by 70 tanks was said to have failed. The Hungarians lost an infantry battalion, it was said.

The news agency Tass said Russian planes flying at tree top heights were inflicting heavy losses on the foe.

As the immediate peril to Stalingrad eased, dispatches from that city on the Volga said 10,000,000 acres of winter and summer crops were being harvested.

Soviet dispatches reported an attack by Russian air forces on Finland's Arctic port of Petsamo, and said the docks were hit and warehouses set afire.

Face "Bottomless" Roads.

BERLIN, July 19 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German high command announced today the German armies driving deeper into Russia's southern flank were encountering "almost bottomless roads," but were continuing to pursue the "defeated" soviets while the Nazi air force smashed and destroyed communications and troop concentrations.

A soviet attempt to land strong forces east of Mariupol, on the Sea of Azov 100 miles west of Rostov, was reported repulsed by Rumanian troops.

[This apparently was a soviet attempt to fall upon the rear of German and axis troops. The German front on the coast is at Taganrog, 40 miles west of Rostov.]

A DNB, German news agency, dispatch said soviet ships trying to pass from the Black sea to the Sea of Azov were effectively fired upon by German coastal batteries in the straits of Kerch, which lie between the eastern Crimea and the northern Caucasus.

Planes Play Major Rôle.

The high command also spoke of "enemy columns and troop concentrations on the upper course of the Don" [presumably in the Voronezh area] and said the Russians suffered large casualties in German air force attacks on these.

The high command communique and statements from authoritative quarters indicated that the air force was playing a major rôle in hitting at the Russians.

The Berlin radio broadcast this report by authoritative quarters on the aerial action on the southern battlefront:

"German bomber formations flying in waves bombed fortifications of Rostov on Saturday. Other German bomber formations attacked soviet Russian railway traffic south of the Don. Many transport trains were set on fire and brought to a standstill. Enemy planes were destroyed on the ground during an attack on the airdrome of Shakhty [50 miles north of Rostov on the railroad to Moscow]."

The Berlin radio said German planes hit tracks and railway stations on lines running from Moscow to the south, halting transport trains which then were attacked by dive bombers.

GASTON TOUCHED WITH THE HEAT, MRS. KELLY SAYS

Mayor Kelly and others yesterday had a few words to say about Edward Page Gaston, eastern prohibition lobbyist, who on Saturday called Chicago, Baltimore, Md., and Norfolk, Va., moral black spots on the nation. Vice and alcohol are rampant in these cities, he charged.

Mrs. Edward J. Kelly.

"Gaston is a calamity howler who has to have something to talk about or he won't get money," Mayor Kelly said. "The army and navy people tell me they have less trouble in Chicago than elsewhere."

The mayor's wife looked up from her work in the Service Men's center to remark that "that man Gaston must be touched with the heat." He is unfair, she asserted, and his charge is unjustified. Miss Jessie F. Binford, executive director of the Juvenile Protective association, said Gaston has no standing with her, and she doubted, she said, whether he is qualified to compare Chicago with other cities.

HEAR RED BANDS HARRY SERBIAN PATRIOT ARMY

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ANKARA, Turkey, July 19.—Gen. Draja Mihailovitch, the Jugo-Slav insurgent leader, has launched a campaign to stamp out Communist partisan bands accused of marauding Serbian and Bosnian villages in territory controled by the loyalist Jugo-Slav armies, according to reports reaching foreign military intelligence sources in Turkey today.

Orders to "liquidate" the Communist raiders were issued by Mihailovitch with the sanction of the Jugo-Slav government in exile in London, it is reported, following assurances from Moscow that such partisans were operating independently and without authorization from the soviet union.

Report Thousands of Bandits.

It is understood that several thousand partisans are now engaged in indiscriminate guerrilla warfare.

Balkan experts in Turkey characterized the campaign against the partisans as "regrettable" but emphasized that it was necessary for Mihailovitch to eliminate any bandits or looters seeking shelter in the ranks of the Chetniks.

Well informed foreign intelligence sources stressed that Mihailovitch's own plight—with his Chetniks and regulars beset by axis armies—does not permit a compromise with partisan bands altho their operations are turned against Germans, Italians, and Croats.

Jugo-Slav Supplies Short.

It is learned that the Jugo-Slav generalissimo is now faced with a grave new shortage of supplies and that his armies suffered very heavy losses in the Bosnian and Dalmatian warfare of early July.

Mihailovitch's forces since the Baczska massacres of May, June, and early July number less than 150,000 men, it is learned from reliable Balkan sources.

[The Russian news agency Tass reported in May that 80,000 Jugo-Slavs in Baczska province had been killed since the Hungarian occupation.]

STATE GAS TAXES FALL 15% IN JUNE, SURVEY SHOWS

Motoring has slackened so perceptibly that state gasoline tax revenues in June declined 15 per cent below June, 1941, in the 13 states which have reported so far on that month, and the trend is downward. This was indicated yesterday in a report by the Federation of Tax Administrators based on a survey of motor fuel tax collections in 43 states.

The report showed that gasoline consumption in states outside those of the eastern seaboard, where gasoline rationing is in effect, has fallen considerably from 1941 levels without rationing. The average May decline was 9 per cent.

The reduction in gasoline revenues is disrupting state financial programs.

The federation found that none of the 43 states which are reporting on gas tax revenues has planned specific legislation to substitute for the shrinking source of state funds. Some state finance officials have not become alarmed because with the decline in gas tax receipts there has been a war curtailment in highway construction and other building.

FOUND DEAD, $250 IN POCKET.

Matthew Abromovich, 67 years old, said by police to have been on relief, was found dead yesterday in his basement room at 3414 Pershing road. He had $250 in his pocket. Police said he died of natural causes.

SUBMARINES SINK 2 MORE SHIPS IN AMERICAN AREA

The sinking of two medium size American cargo ships, one in the West Indies on July 12 and the other in the South Atlantic on June 22, was announced last night by the navy.

More than 100 shells were fired by the U-boat that sank the ship in the South Atlantic, but all of the 35 aboard were saved.

These sinkings increased to 385 the number of ships lost in American and adjacent waters since Pearl Harbor, according to an unofficial Associated Press tabulation. Of these 329 have been sunk near the shores of the United States, with 2,022 known dead, 1,857 missing, and 10,977 rescued. Details of the latest sinkings follow:

PEPPERED BY SHELLS

An East Coast Port, July 19 (AP). Sparing its torpedoes, an axis submarine which opened fire at long range hurled more than 100 shells into an unarmed United States cargo ship in the South Atlantic June 22, survivors reported on their arrival here. The navy announced the sinking today.

The entire crew of 35 aboard the medium sized vessel escaped in four lifeboats and were picked up by a rescue ship after 19 hours afloat.

Chief Mate John B. Regan of Rahway, N. J., told naval officers the attacking submersible fired its first shell from a distance of nearly five miles.

3 IN ENGINE ROOM KILLED

An East Coast Port, July 19 (AP). —The commander of an axis submarine gave crewmen 13 minutes to abandon ship before he fired the coup de grace torpedo into a medium sized American merchantman near a large West Indian island July 12. The sinking was announced by the navy.

Three men on watch in the engine room were killed when the first torpedo came out of the darkness of a moonless night and struck at 9:12 p. m. Thirty-six members of the merchant crew and 11 navy gunners left the ship in three lifeboats.

At 9:25 p. m. the submarine, never seen by survivors, fired another torpedo that apparently broke the back of the ship.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[THE TRIBUNE will pay $5 for each question submitted by a reader and used by THE TRIBUNE. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. Charles Ray, Stockton, Ill.]

THE QUESTION.

What impressed you most on the day you started attending school?

WHERE ASKED.

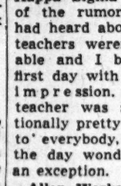
THE ANSWERS.

Ethel Solway, student, Hobart House, Evanston—All the other boys and girls were accompanied by their parents. The only moral support I had was my sister. I was impressed by that. I felt very much more capable and independent because my mother didn't go with me.

Clifford Johnson, student, 101 16th street—At first I dreaded the thought of school because I was sure it was going to be hard work. Later, I was impressed by the simplicity of the little things we had to do. As I could color and draw I was sure I was going to be one of the best in the class.

Mrs. Alfred Schneck, student, 822 Foster avenue—My first day in the country school made a lasting impression on me. I saw my older cousin turn around and make a face at some one else and I thought that was what the full fledged student should do. The teacher caught me in the act and I spent the rest of the day in the corner.

Lieut. Fred W. Johnston, athletic officer, 1534 Pitner avenue, Evanston—I thought school was going to be a lot of hard, dull work. When the teacher lined us up in a row to march to music I thought it was a wonderful institution. Nothing could have impressed me more.



Larry Skolowsky, student, Phi Kappa Sigma House, Evanston—All of the rumors that I had heard about school teachers weren't favorable and I began the first day with a wrong impression. My first teacher was so exceptionally pretty and nice to everybody, I spent the day wondering if she was just an exception.

Allen Workman, 10 years old, 716 Foster avenue — Before I started in the primary grade I went to nursery school for two years. It was such an ordinary experience for me that by the time I was old enough to go to school nothing impressed me.

STORY BEHIND TWO KILLINGS IN PAINTERS' UNION

Wallace Dies of Wounds Received in Fight.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Arthur W. Wallace, secretary-treasurer of the Painters' District council, died yesterday as the result of a gunshot wound he suffered early Friday morning in the home of Charles Youngblood, business agent of local No. 147 of the Painters' union. Youngblood's wife, Loretta, was slain at the same time Wallace was shot and Youngblood was shot thru the right elbow.

Arthur W. Wallace.

Why Wallace and the Youngbloods were shot was a matter of conjecture last night. Youngblood admitted shooting Wallace, who, he said, had been his best friend. Youngblood and his wife both said Wallace shot them. Youngblood said Wallace was "crazy drunk" at the time and the shooting was unprovoked.

Friends Give Shooting Version.

Wallace's friends told a different story to Capt. Thomas Harrison of the Warren avenue station. They asked that he find out how Wallace was induced or lured into going to Youngblood's home at 2227 Monroe street. Back of the shooting, they said, was Youngblood's ambition to step into Wallace's shoes when Wallace took an army job he was expecting to be offered in a few days.

Wallace was wealthy, the captain was told, owning two large farms near Antioch. Wallace also was said to possess other property and holdings valued at more than $300,000. He made most of his money years ago as the secret partner of a prominent contractor, according to information given Harrison.

Wallace was reported to have had the confidence of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. Green according to Harrison's sources, took Wallace into the office of Assistant Secretary of War Patterson and recommended him as a liaison man between the war department and labor.

Didn't Want Youngblood as Boss.

Wallace told his friends he expected either a commission in the army or a job as a $1 a year man and that when he left Chicago he didn't want Youngblood to become boss of the Painters' district council. Capt. Harrison pointed out that Wallace had been Youngblood's benefactor and had obtained Youngblood's parole from prison. Youngblood served a sentence for armed robbery.

In recent years, however, according to those in Wallace's confidence, he had come to distrust Youngblood who was in constant difficulties with contractors and other business men. Each complaint against Youngblood was considered a black mark against Wallace who was supposed to approve Youngblood's ways and means, but who in reality was said to have disapproved of them.

Termed Good Fighter.

Wallace was a boyhood acquaintance of Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for State's Attorney Courtney. Gilbert described Wallace as a strong character who could fight with his fists better than most men. Gilbert's statement was in harmony with the belief expressed last night to Capt. Harrison that Wallace had been in a fist fight before he was shot.

Friends who were at the hospital told detectives that Wallace did not know the Youngbloods had been shot. They said Wallace had a puffed nose, which indicated he had been struck, and that he complained of a shoulder injury.

Capt. Harrison agreed that from the appearance of the Youngblood apartment after the police arrived, a fist fight could have occurred. In addition to the disturbance of the furniture there were at least eight bullet holes in various parts of the hall and parlor, Harrison said.

Spent Evenings in Taverns.

Wallace partisans suggested to the captain that if Wallace had intended to harm Youngblood in any way he could and would have done so while both were at Dominic's tavern at California avenue a short time prior to the gunfire in the Youngblood home.

Wallace owned the building in which the tavern is located. He spent many of his evenings in the tavern, playing rummy with members of his union and other friends, the captain was told. On Thursday evening he went there after a meeting in his union hall at 1446 Adams street.

"Wallace arrived at the union headquarters just as the meeting ended," Capt. Harrison said. "Youngblood was there and they met at the entrance, Youngblood going out and Wallace going in. Wallace said to Youngblood: 'I thought you were my friend,' and Youngblood said, 'If anybody says I am not, bring him around and show him to me.' They parted, apparently friendly.

"Youngblood went downtown and met his wife; then both of them went back to Dominic's to see Wallace. Youngblood seldom went to Dominic's. The bartender said there was not the least sign of trouble between Wallace and Youngblood during the time they were there, probably two hours.

"Apparently the Youngbloods went home alone—that is, Wallace did not accompany them. The bartender thought they went out about the same time. Youngblood's story is that soon after his arrival home the doorbell rang and he asked his wife to go to the door while he stood nearby with a pistol in his hand. He said Wallace started shooting as soon as Mrs. Youngblood opened the door.

"Youngblood said he shot Wallace once, using his right hand to fire the pistol, and then he was wounded. He next fired three shots with his left hand, he told me. We have his postol with four shots fired. We also have another pistol found in the apartment and which had not been fired.

"The police took both the Youngbloods to the hospital. They both said Wallace had done the shooting. We did not find Wallace until an hour later when he was reported at the Franklin Boulevard hospital, two miles away. Wallace would make no statement."

While Capt. Gilbert, Capt. Harrison, and other officials agreed that Youngblood would not be permitted to return to his rule of local 147, George Tuckbreiter, first vice president of the painters' international union, said the international would supervise filling both Wallace's and Youngblood's jobs.

But before the international can act, Tuckbreiter said, the district council must meet and ask the parent body to intervene.

CHICAGO PAINTER KILLED, SIX HURT IN IOWA CRASH

Dave Gustafson, 52 years old, a painter, 6345 Sangamon street, was killed yesterday and six other persons were injured, including his brothers, Gus, 72, and Andrew, 76, in an automobile collision 10 miles east of Des Moines, Ia.

Herman Wrege, 72, of 1844 North Kedzie avenue, died in Belmont hospital of injuries received Saturday night when he was struck at Belmont and Spaulding avenues by the automobile driven by Ralph Kibler, 22, of 3819 Arthur avenue, Brookfield. Wrege, a city watchman, had lost one leg as a result of an accident 17 years ago. He walked with crutches.

Mrs. Adelaide Hoffman, 69, 1545 North La Salle street, died of injuries suffered May 8 when she was struck at 1500 North Clark street by an auto driven by Stephen Dwyer, 49, of 9248 North Long avenue, Skokie.

Arthur Vosepka of 6137 South Kedvale avenue died in St. Luke's hospital of injuries received May 12 when struck by a surface lines bus in Pulaski road at 62d street.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 400 persons had been killed in auto accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 312 lost their lives in Chicago, where 11,250 were injured.

Friend of the Yank

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

Mrs. L. E. G. writes: "When my son was taken into the service he took out a national life insurance policy issued thru the government. It is supposed to be a $10,000 policy payable as a government pension for 20 years at $50 per month in case of death. What I want to know is if it will be payable on death even tho I am not in need of it? I saw in your column some time ago that the beneficiary has to be dependent to receive the payments."

ANSWER: You are not the only person to be confused by the letter and answer given in this column on June 30. The letter and answer you saw had nothing to do with insurance of the type your son has taken out, but concerned what is called "automatic insurance." "Automatic insurance" covers men in the armed forces who have not availed themselves of the opportunity to purchase the National Service Life insurance within the 120 days from the original date of entry into service. If the service man should die or be killed in action within that period, the widow and children, if any, are considered dependents and will collect the automatic insurance granted to the veteran in the amount of $5,000.

In order to permit the parents to collect the benefits under the provisions of "automatic insurance," they are specifically designated as "dependent mother or father." If the parents are not dependent, it stands to reason that due to the fact that the service man himself did not apply for insurance and the government pays the premiums, the government considers him insured under the "automatic insurance" without knowing the facts as to whether or not he had a wife and/or children. Should it develop that he had no wife or children, and had parents only, payments are not made to them unless they are shown to have been dependent upon the service man prior to his entry into service.

The insurance your son has taken out provides, for example, that if the beneficiary is under 30 years of age at the date of death of the insured, payment is made in 240 equal monthly instalments at the rate $5.51 a month for each $1,000 of insurance. If the beneficiary is more than 30 years of age at the time of death of the insured, payments will be made in equal monthly instalments for 120 months. There is no lump sum payment. The insured does not have to be killed in combat in order for the beneficiary to collect. Death from natural causes also is covered.

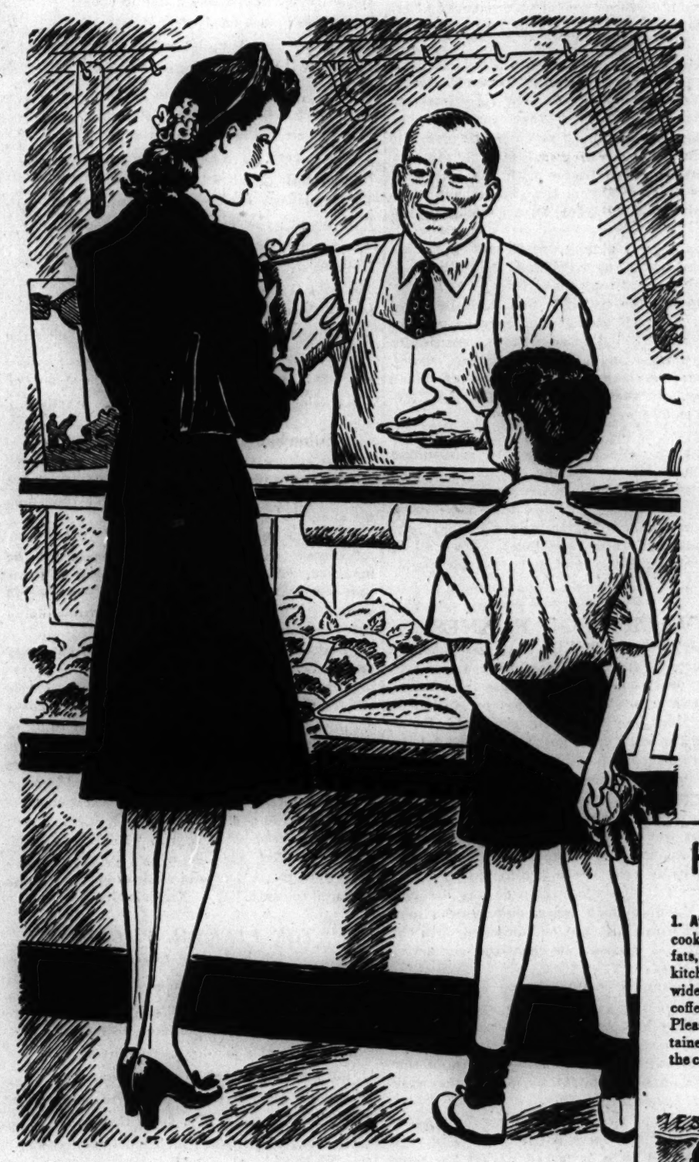
"Yes, Bud! We'll send it to the Japs—behind a Shell!"



BUD: You mean Mom's bacon grease is shot in cannons? Jimminy! I never knew that.

MR. JONES: Neither did I, Bud, till the War Production Board wrote me a letter a few weeks ago. You see, kitchen fats make glycerine. And glycerine makes explosives that fire millions of shells for the United Nations. We need great quantities of glycerine to carry on the fight. And so—

BUD: So — Mom doesn't pour her grease down the sink any more. She sends it off to war.

MOM: That's right, Bud. And it means every kind of waste fat we have—drippings from chops and roasts, ham fat, bacon grease, vegetable shortening, everything. After I've got all the cooking good out of them, I bring them here to the meat market and Mr. Jones sends them on their way to war factories. I'm making it a wartime habit—for the duration.

Here's what you should do

1. After you've got all the cooking good from your fats, strain them through a kitchen sieve into a clean, wide-mouthed can, as a coffee or shortening can. Please don't use glass containers or paper bags. Keep the can in a cool, dark place.

2. Take to your meat dealer when you've collected a pound or more. He will pay you the established price for your fats and send them on their way to the war factories. But it will help him greatly if you can deliver them early in the week.

WE'RE GOING BACK TO BATAAN!

GIVING THE PROFITEERS A BREAK.

Both the President and the secretary of the treasury asserted some time ago that an objective of taxation now should be to take the profits out of war. The tax bill which was forced to the floor of the house Wednesday thru a New Deal push led by Rep. McKeough disregards this principle. It does not place corporate tax increases preponderantly upon income realized directly or indirectly out of war contracts.

The first feature of the tax on corporations to be noted is the increase in the ordinary tax rate [normal plus surtax] from 31 per cent at present to 45 per cent. A company making civilian goods in greatly reduced quantities and with profits lower than in years will pay taxes at the increased rate.

Meanwhile, companies making a killing out of the war will have their ordinary tax rate increased, too, but by the same amount as the non-war concerns. Any of the makers of war goods who happen to have a large amount of obsolescent equipment on their books are in a position to escape the burden of the excess profits tax.

The ways and means committee, which has been working for months on its bill, had reached an agreement to make the normal tax 40 per cent and the excess profits tax 94 per cent—14 per cent of the excess profits payment to be refunded after the war. At the last minute, according to Congressman Harold Knutson of Minnesota, a member of the committee, "thru a series of trades and shameless logrolling," the rates for the ordinary tax were raised and the rates of the excess profits tax were reduced. This meant increasing the burden of companies already suffering on account of the war, and going easier on the companies directly profiting from the war.

In the last war, the ordinary corporation tax was 12 per cent, as compared with 31 per cent at present, 40 per cent as proposed in the 1942 tax bill as it stood until last Saturday, and 45 per cent as it was reported to the house. In addition the 1918 law provided for an excess profits tax going up to 65 per cent except on war contracts, when it went to 80 per cent. The new excess profits tax is 87½ per cent.

If the bill goes thru as drafted the government will collect nearly four times as much per dollar of profit as was collected in the World war from companies stricken by the war. Meanwhile, those companies making a harvest out of war will not be obliged to pay materially more per dollar of profit than under the 1918 tax law.

There is considerable work yet to be done on the 1942 tax measure, but there seems little hope that needed changes will be made before the measure reaches the senate. There it will be taken in hand by Sen. George, a worthy successor to Sen. Pat Harrison. Sen. George has said the 1942 tax bill should stand for the period of the war. That ought to appeal to every one as good sense. There are enough uncertainties without congress adding to them by messing around continuously with the tax structure.

THE PAINTERS' UNION.

Artie Wallace, who took in the money from the painters' union, died yesterday in a hospital with a bullet in his belly. He was accused of the fatal shooting of Mrs. Charles Youngblood. Youngblood, a felon whose parole Wallace procured because he thought the former stickup man would be useful in running the union, is in a hospital, wounded in the gunfight that took place when Wallace invaded his home.

The murder of Mrs. Youngblood is the eighth within the last 10 years connected with the affairs of the painters' union in Chicago. None of the others was ever solved. They included the assassination of a number of gangsters who either were officials of the union or were trying to muscle into its affairs.

The painters' union in the Chicago area has 21,000 members. They are, of course, overwhelmingly a decent, law abiding lot of citizens, no different from an equal number of steel workers, or bookkeepers, or pharmacists. The painters might well be looked upon as the victims of the gangsters who have ruled their union for a good many years. They have certainly been victimized by the gangsters who have collected their dues and used them as they pleased. But the primary responsibility for the presence of the gangsters in the union rests with these respectable members. It isn't merely a constructive responsibility arising from lack of vigilance on the part of the union membership or lack of courage in standing up against the hoodlums. It is direct responsibility. The only way the union could be operated to get what its members evidently wanted was to operate thru hoodlums.

The painters' union has been notorious for exacting high wages and forbidding its members to use modern labor saving devices. Not only has the pneumatic spraying of paint been outlawed but painters are actually limited, in some instances, as to the size of the brush with which they may spread the paint.

Despite the long contention that labor is not a commodity it is actually a commodity of which there are competing brands. Normally the skilled mechanic has the quality goods. He can do a job better than an unskilled man and he can, by forming an association with the rest of the skilled workmen in his craft, set a minimum price for his work which can be maintained as the union scale. But, as with all other commodities, there is a substitute for skilled labor. The substitute is unskilled labor.

The unskilled workman cannot do as good a job or do it as quickly as the skilled workman. If the skilled man is twice as good as the unskilled man he can command at least twice as high a salary and obtain it thru the merit of his skill. But if he demands three or four times as much money as the unskilled laborer or, as in the case of the painters, as the skilled workman who is willing to use labor saving devices and thus increase his efficiency, the only way the union monopoly can be kept is thru threats or violence.

That is the situation in which the painters' union has found itself for many years. It is not a unique situation. Any union in which the pay is out of proportion to the skill required is bound, from that very fact, to fall into the hands of gangsters. It was a forgone conclusion, for instance, that when the wages of motion picture operators, who could learn their craft in a few days, got up to $90 a week the only way they could be kept there was thru the guns of hoodlums. The gunmen drove away job seekers willing to do the work for half that wage and at the same time shook down the operators for the privilege of drawing the high wages.

The union will serve to protect its members against price cutting by other skilled workmen. What it cannot prevent by peaceful means is the competition of the unskilled workman in instances when the rate for the union skill is boosted so high it becomes an uneconomic buy for the employer. That sort of competition can only be met by violence, and it was because they adopted that method of doing business that the painters inevitably got the Wallaces and Youngbloods on their backs.

NELSON ROCKEFELLER'S MILLIONS.

Nelson Rockefeller is a member of a family with a great deal of money. It is indubitable that he has a certain magnificence in dispensing money as an administrator for the federal government. Maybe the explanation is that it is federal money. A lot of people seem to think that federal money doesn't count.

Nelson Rockefeller is the coördinator of inter-American affairs. This agency is designed to cultivate good will between the United States and the Latin-American republics. The first John D. cultivated good will with dimes. When the supplemental national defense appropriations bill came before the senate, it developed that Mr. Rockefeller was spending 28 million dollars a year—one million more than the state department was spending to finance its relations with all the friendly governments in the world. Furthermore, all the activities of the state department in Latin America cost 1½ million dollars, as compared with Mr. Rockefeller's 28 million.

Sen. McKellar, endeavoring to explain what Mr. Rockefeller was up to, said that a great deal of Mr. Rockefeller's activities could not be recounted to the senate, altho these activities had been explained by Mr. Rockefeller to the senate appropriations committee. "We are not at war with South America," interposed Sen. McNary. "Is it a war secret?" He added that he did not understand why it was not to the interest of Americans to know what is going on in our relations with nations with which we are at peace.

Well, said Sen. McKellar, what Mr. Rockefeller was doing in Latin America was very beneficial, but it was a ticklish problem. Mr. Rockefeller was busy developing good will, but he had a lot of competition from our enemies, who are doing the same thing. They have the advantage, the senator said, because there are a great many Germans, Italians, and Japanese in Latin America, and few Americans.

Sen. Hayden of Arizona came to Sen. McKellar's assistance by saying that altho what Mr. Rockefeller was doing had to be kept secret, it was very much worth while. "What Mr. Rockefeller does is not by deception," said Sen. Hayden, "it is by telling the truth. His idea of impressing the South American people with the justice of our cause is to tell them the truth about it, to tell them truthfully what we are doing in the war."

"It has never cost any one 28 million dollars to tell the truth," objected Sen. Bailey. "Does the senator mean to say that we spend 28 million dollars to tell the truth?" Sen. McKellar said in reply: "Not all of that sum may be used in telling the truth," but he added that "the results have been exceedingly beneficial." Sen. Bailey suggested: "It is a new conception of dollar diplomacy. Is that the idea?" No, Sen. McKellar wouldn't say that.

That is where the matter was left. Therefore, it would appear that Mr. Rockefeller is spending 28 million dollars to tell the truth, but not always; that it is a secret what he is doing, but the results are beneficial, and that what he is doing is not dollar diplomacy, but neither is it his grandfather's dime diplomacy. After all, it costs 28 million dollars, and, as even a Rockefeller would say, that ain't hay.

RIVALRY FOR PLANES.

Secretary Stimson says the navy has increased its requests for heavy and medium bombers suitable for operation from land bases. In consequence the quotas of these types for the army will necessarily be reduced unless, as he hopes, the factories will find it possible to step up production to meet the needs of both services.

A writer in the magazine American Aviation suggests that the army and navy are not in such complete accord in the matter as Mr. Stimson's statement would indicate. Their relations were amicable enough, he finds, as long as the two services were each seeking different types of equipment but now that their desires are converging upon common types, antagonisms have developed which may not be composed until the President has decided between the conflicting claims.

The importance of this conflict can be exaggerated. The flyers of both the army and the navy are peerless, as they have shown on many occasions. Each service has developed certain specialties but there is no reason to think that these skills are monopolies which the other services cannot expect to learn.

As long as our planes reach either the army or the navy they will serve our cause, and serve it capably. What is to be feared is that too many of our planes will be sent overseas to be flown by pilots of less determination on unimportant fronts with indecisive results.

Editorial of the Day

TWELVE TIMES AS MUCH.

[Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City.]

Taxes collected in the 48 states now total 12 times the taxes collected 25 years ago. War conditions and the necessity for saving the country at any cost do not explain this increase. For the curve of taxation began to rise sharply in 1915. That was long before the attack on Pearl Harbor. It was even before the World war broke in 1917.

It would take volumes, perhaps, to explain this terrific increase in the maintenance cost of state government in the 48 commonwealths. Even if fully explained, it would be difficult to understand. But if you are too busy to master the subject and digest the details, you might entertain yourself with this question, "Is state government worth 12 times as much to me as it was 25 years ago?"

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

COSSACKS OF THE DON.

The River Don in Russia, where tremendous tides of battle are flowing, deserves its spokesman. There was a time when it meant more to the American people than the Volga, which became famous because of its dreary boat song. Before the intellectuals began to read Turgenev and Tolstoy; before Greenwich Village started to prattle about Chekov's plays; before Broadway idolized Balieff's "Chauve-Souris"; before Trotsky, Lenin and the Communist complex, the romance of Russia, seen thru our western eyes, centered in the valley of the Don. Why? Because the Cossacks of the Don were supposed to be hot stuff.

• • •

In that period, 50 years ago or more, there was a great deal of romantic literature about Russia available for English and American readers. The principal elements in these tales were princes, serfs, Nihilists, wolves, and Cossacks of the Don. The latter could occasionally be seen in person, riding in circuses and wild west shows. Their influence has left its mark upon American life, for big business men often display arsenals of fountain pens on their chests, the way the Cossacks of the Don wore their cartridges

• • •

The historical fame of the Don Cossacks runs back to a hetman named Stenka Razin, who died in 1671. His is a long story, which we will dismiss with the statement that his horde of rough-riding rebels tore Russia wide open for several years. . . . But the greatest Cossack of them all, to the American way of thinking, was Mazeppa, about whom Lord Byron wrote a long narrative poem. He was a Cossack of the Dnieper rather than the Don, but worthy of the great tradition.

• • •

"Bring forth the horse!"—The horse was brought.
In truth he was a noble steed,
A Tartar of the Ukraine breed,
Who looked as tho the speed of thought
Were in his limbs. . . ."

This introduction to Byron's description of Mazeppa's ride used to be a favorite recitation among American school children.

• • •

Then there was a drama based on Byron's story, popular as a vehicle for shapely actresses who liked to wear tights. They represented the naked Mazeppa, tied upon the back of a wild horse, and merchant princes threw diamond necklaces at them.

GARDEN IN THE CITY.

Audibly sighing, "I've done enough."
The cottonwoods rustle with lazy stir
And the lonesome crickets begin to chirr;
Shadows are etched on the garden wall
Where the snail has left his silvery scrawl.
The four o'clocks are telling the time
While the squirrel chooses a tree to climb;
And the wren starts up his scolding fuss.
Mark how the corn has begun to tassel
Where the rabbits held unholy wassail!
The velvet dark comes a-creeping on,
The stars are out and the sun is gone.
The trees grow black and press around,
Holding their breath without a sound;
The night hawk swoops thru the fading light
With the angry squeal of a raider's flight;
The fireflies' lanterns wax and wane,
Lanterns strung on a swinging chain;
The light that sifts thru the mulberry tree
Is only the street lamp it's plain to see;
But what lurks where the shadows creep, no one knows!

S'Amuser.

Suburban Life Without the Boys.

"The silence around here is simply appalling," cried Ferdinand, my silver tabby. "If the boys had to go to the country, why didn't they take me along?"

"Dogs," I said. "Two of them."

"There's a snake in every paradise," he mourned. "Well, life has certainly been dull this past week. Boys may be a lot of 'noise covered with dirt,' but at least there's something doing every minute."

"Perhaps the Man of the House will have pity and romp with you tonight."

"Not him," said Ferdinand firmly. "He wouldn't approve of me even if I shaved every day and twice on Sundays. And while I think of it, my girl, I have a complaint to make about the food served around here lately. No hamburgers since the boys left."

"This," I reminded him, "is our vacation."

"Well, if you don't mind," he said, pushing open the screen door with a paw, "I'll take a stroll down the alley and see what's cooking. With nine lives to go, I should stick around here and be bored to death." Eugenia Gerlach Stein.

THE ETERNAL PILGRIM.

(John Bunyan, 1628-1688.)

A light that shines in darkness of defeat
May burn thru prison stones and penetrate
The vastly thicker walls of Time to meet
Responsive eyes and hearts illuminate,
O, spirit lamp that has so often shed
Thru the gloomy, smoke-smothered hour of fear
The flickering vestige of a flame that fed
Like loaves and fishes, multitudes with cheer;
How many hands have held you thru the fight
To guard a citadel from stealthiness,
Or guide a squadron thru the stormy night,
Or turn a dragon to the wilderness.
Among those faithful hands—a pledge to one

Why Horseshoes Are Lucky.

See Kipling's "Puck of Pook's Hill" stories for information about Wayland Smith, the horseshoer of the gods, a character in old English folklore. Then consider the fact that L. Wayland-Smith and R. Wayland-Smith are directors of a firm now making delicate forgings for American military use. . . . Thus it would appear that the war is as good as won. Victor Sherman.

A remark by Rudyard Kipling came into our mind as we read the stories of Midway Island: "The men who took Lung-tung-pen naked could take St. Petersburg in their drawers."

SUNSTROKE DEMANDS INSTANT ATTENTION.

WE depend upon the sun for heat, light, and the chemical effects of ultraviolet. As the temperature of the soil rises seeds germinate, crops grow, and in due time the harvest comes.

Now, the human body can stand only so much warmth and nature has provided each of us with an excellent heat regulating equipment. This will function perfectly under ordinary conditions—if elimination [including perspiration] is normal, if plenty of liquids are provided, and if clothing permits the skin to be bathed by gentle breezes.

But let too much caloric be produced inside the body, with the surrounding air at 100 degrees F. or even higher, and the internal fires may glow too brightly. In the presence of fever, wastes accumulate so rapidly that poisoning may result. Expose an individual to a desert atmosphere and within a short time the "regulating" system may go completely out of commission. Then comes what is known as "sunstroke" or "thermic fever."

The most common cause is exposure to direct sunlight. Early symptoms include headache, dizziness, frequent urination, disturbance of vision, and a feeling of impending calamity. The first objective sign is a fainting attack. The countenance, however, is far from pale. The skin feels hot, the face is flushed, and the rectal thermometer reading will be above 105 degrees F.

We are confronted with an emergency. The victim should be removed promptly to a shady place, stripped of his clothing, and every effort made to cool him off. Chunks of ice packed about the head and rubbed over the cuticle will help. An ordinary garden sprinkler filled with ice water may be played over the surface. One of the quickest methods is to place the patient in a bathtub in which ice is floating.

If transportation to a hospital is feasible this should be accomplished without delay. There, fluid can be given directly into a vein. Occasionally artificial respiration will be required and a tank of oxygen will be of the greatest value. As soon as the mercury drops to 103 degrees the afflicted person should be put to bed, as collapse may follow if the level recedes to normal [98.6 degrees F.] too abruptly. If indications of heart failure are observed, particularly with edema of the lungs, bleeding may be indicated.

It is well understood that once a person has suffered a sunstroke he may remain susceptible for quite some time—possibly a year or more. After recovery good hygiene demands that only light work should be attempted for several weeks, especially if the weather remains torrid. Naturally alcoholic beverages should be avoided and only a light diet consumed.

Prevention is more important than cure. Foremen in charge of workmen must shoulder a real responsibility on humid "dog" days. Water drinking may be encouraged, salt or glucose tablets allowed, and every one cautioned to eat lightly. Excess clothing should be discarded, as free circulation of air over the epidermis is beneficial.

ENLARGED CERVICAL GLANDS.

A. S. writes: Several months ago I had a physical examination. My report stated that I had enlarged cervical lymph nodes. Does this indicate anything serious?

REPLY.

At one time—months or years ago—you probably had an infection within the throat or the sinuses. Your glands enlarged due to the drainage from these areas. If the structures are not tender and are not increasing in size your trouble has passed.

NO DANGER.

Mrs. A. M. writes: After receiving injections for varicose veins could a blood clot become detached in the leg and travel thru the system?

REPLY.

A remote possibility. As a rule, the vessel shrivels and becomes unable to transport anything—much less a clot.

IN DEFENSE OF CONGRESS.

Mount Vernon, Ill., July 15.—In my opinion it is alarming that congressmen are coming in for criticism for their attitude toward certain administrative agencies. I have in mind particularly the charge that congress is hamstringing Leon Henderson by withholding some of the funds he asked for to run the OPA. The simple fact, which most congressmen do not like to state, is that the representatives of the people do not trust men appointed by the administration.

Many of the senators and representatives will be called to account by their constituents this fall. They know that any resentment of government activity will be registered at the polls. The congressman will be held responsible by the voters not only for his own activities but also for whatever the administration has done which is contrary to the wishes and judgment of the people. Whether or not this is fair is beside the point. That is the way our republic works.

Our congress is not perfect, as we are not perfect, but we should and do resent any criticism of our elected representatives, whether it be from the heads of foreign governments or from our own administration. It is our privilege, as Americans, to have bad representation in congress if we choose, and for a century and a half we have always found something to do about it. If any interference with the election of our senators and representatives from outside sources doesn't make us boiling mad, then the people have lost all those things we claim to be fighting for. David C. Arthurs.

MOVIE STARS IN WARTIME.

Chicago, July 16.—In her movie column of July 16, Hedda Hopper feels that male movie stars should not enlist and serve their country the same as you or I. She says the income tax they pay on their huge salaries helps the government more than their personal services could. I would like to hear what the private soldiers in our army would have to say in answer, but I'm afraid you wouldn't be able to print it. David Emerson.

MAYBE THEY'LL JOIN THE WAAC's.

Braidwood, Ill., July 16.—I never yet asked any one to do something I, myself, was unwilling to do. Why should any "Fight for Freedomer" be expecting to be drafted or await being drafted? Why should they not have gone into the service months ago? Let them answer that question. W. C. Frick.
Mayor of Braidwood.

BEACH VANDALS.

Chicago, July 15.—Why is it that some people find it necessary to eat lunch on the beaches and to distribute delectable specimens of orange peel and half-consumed rolls along the shore? When we go in for a swim, if there is an offshore wind, we are likely as not to come up out of the water with bloated biscuits around our necks. If Chicago is as beauty conscious of its lake front as it pretends to be, why isn't something done about cleaning up the refuse that irresponsible citizens leave behind them? Why not place wire baskets with signs at intervals along the beaches and enforce the rule of emptying all litter therein? Near North Sider.

UNDELIVERED MAIL.

Chicago, July 17.—McCutcheon's cartoon, "He didn't get a letter from home" is very touching. But why doesn't the soldier get any mail?

Today I received my first letter from my son since the war department advised me he had arrived safely at his destination.

My son writes "I received about seven letters in the last six months, that's from every one I know, so one of these days if I receive the mail every one wrote me in the past I will have reading material for quite a while."

Today I sent him the fifty-third letter this year. His sweetheart, buddies, friends and relatives have sent him at least 150 more. They were all stamped and correctly addressed to the address furnished by the war department.

PREDECESSOR OF THE WAAC.

Chicago, July 16. — Apropos of the Women's army in process of formation, I wonder how many remember Chicago's own khaki-clad miniature Women's army of the first World war—the National Service school? It was sponsored, if I remember correctly, by the Navy league. This tented city held forth on the grounds of the Northwestern Military academy at Lake Geneva.

Mrs. Edward Swift and Mrs. Frederick Countiss were the commandants. Lolita Armour and her group of young people were the captains. Everything moved with military precision and there was some huffing and puffing at the sound of revellie, which meant a sprint for the parade grounds to be put thru our squads-right and squads-left by officers from Great Lakes or Fort Sheridan.

It was an interesting six weeks in the matter of military drills, as well as the instruction in telegraphy, wireless, wigwagging, first aid, diet, home care of the sick, surgical dressing, hospital supplies, etc. Julia T. Stitzel.

FAST MAIL FROM ICELAND.

Metropolis, Ill., July 16.—"Reader" in today's Tribune complained of the slow mail service to Australia. My husband is not there, but he is in Iceland, which "Reader" will admit is fairly distant. I have in my possession a letter he wrote the evening of July 1, mailed the morning of July 2, and which I received the morning of July 6. I usually receive his mail in seven or nine days, but four is indeed a record. H. I. K.

MISS ELLIOTT'S NEW JOB.

Chicago, July 12.—Is it possible that "P. M.," who wrote in your Sunday column, is unaware that Harriet Elliott is now associate field director of the war savings staff, under Harold N. Graves, concerning whom you had a glowing editorial that same Sunday? M. G.

JOHNSTON'S INSPIRING TALK.

New York, July 10.—The Tribune's New York luncheon for Stanley Johnston was a rare occasion. I wouldn't have missed it for anything. What an experience! What a story! And what confidence in our navy it inspired! Thank you for giving me the privilege of being there. J. C. Bull.

HELPING THE BOND DRIVE.

Chicago, July 17.—We want you to know that your most generous and effective aid in promoting the war bond sales breakfast held at the Stevens hotel this morning, is deeply appreciated by the Retailers.

M. C. Penticoff.
President Chicago Retail Merchants' Assn.

Chicago, July 17.—Just a word to express the appreciation of the Illinois War Savings staff for the splendid coöperation which The Chicago Tribune has been consistently giving the War Savings program.

We were particularly interested in yesterday's full page in color on war bonds and the American Heroes Day celebration, the full page in color a few weeks ago on the Savings Stamp corsages, and today's striking front page cartoon.

It is, of course, especially helpful and necessary to have this all-out coöperation in the War Savings effort because of the manner in which the treasury department is conducting the campaign, as was well pointed out in the editorial on Mr. Harold N. Graves in last Sunday's Tribune. This is almost entirely a voluntary organization, with an exceedingly limited and frugal budget. The response from industry, labor, newspapers, and individual men and women here in Chicago and Illinois is, of course, the reason why this state is well in the forefront of the nation in the sale of War Savings bonds and stamps.

Norman B. Collins.
State Administrator,
Treasury Department,
War Savings Staff.

DIVORCE DECREE.

Oak Park, Ill., July 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have been told that there is a law when a divorced man must help support the children who are in the custody of the wife, [1] stating he can't leave the state permanently. Would like to know if this is true.

2. Can the wife demand a certain percentage of a man's salary?

3. If a permanent sum is named when the divorce becomes final, is that all right? M. S.

1. There is no such rule unless the divorce decree contains wording on this point.

2. There is no fixed statutory percentage.

3. The divorce decree should settle such points. The attorney who is handling the case for you is in a better position to advise you than we are.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

RIGHT TO PROPERTY.

Chicago, July 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My property, consisting of house and lot, is recorded in my wife's name. In case of her death [1] does it lawfully become mine?

2. Is the making of a will to that effect necessary? W. I.

1. Yes, if you are the only heir, but probate proceedings would be necessary to make a readily salable title. A joint tenancy would avoid this difficulty.

2. Not unless there are other heirs.

50,000 CHICAGO SLAVS DEDICATE EFFORTS TO U. S.

Observe Anniversary of Victory Over Teutons.

Fifty thousand Chicagoans who spring from Slavic lands now under Hitler's domination were warned by Mayor Kelly in Soldiers' field yesterday that the same fate awaits America unless the country realizes that not to coöperate in civilian defense is treason.

The mayor's speech was the major note in the picturesque massmeeting called to unite the city's Slavs in the war effort and to mark the 532d anniversary of the battle of Grunwald, in which Slavs of the 15th century banded together for the first time to defeat Teutonic invaders.

Think of Other Fellow.

Kelly drew a long cheer from the crowd when he declared that the time had come when Americans must coöperate and not complain. "Think of the other fellow more and less of ourselves," the mayor said. "There can be no indifference; we cannot talk ourselves into victory. We must coöperate in civilian defense and prepare for the bombers before they come. Doing this is not just a matter of patriotism. Rather, I would say that not to do these things is downright treason."

Asserting that the rally was more than a spectacle, the mayor pleaded with the Slavs to rededicate themselves with the rest of the nation to make "high principles a living pattern in our lives." Unity, Kelly said, is an empty word unless America can produce it in action. Traditional privileges in the American way of life will vanish unless every one does something, he said.

Brave Blistering Sun.

The crowd itself was the great feature at the rally. Shirt sleeved and straw hatted men sat with their wives and sweethearts for five hours under the blistering sun. They applauded vigorously when their great hero, Draha Mihailovitch, the Jugo-Slavian guerrilla fighter, was mentioned. They raised their voices in a shout of approval for a second front in Europe and they pledged their unity to America. And when a float with the words "Poland Lives" paraded by, women cried.

United Under One Flag.

Postmaster General Frank Walker, who came here from Washington for the program, told the crowd that they and other Chicago Slavs were proof that people from every land could be united under one flag. He said that this city had the finest blending of races and also an exhibition of sacrifice, endeavor, fighting courage and firm faith which marks the Slavic people.

Walker warned, however, that America had great need of loyalty and patriotism from every one. "If this nation is to survive," he said, "we have need of utmost effort and superb teamwork. Let us pledge ourselves to give every moment of our working hours in support of our brave men in battle.

Many Groups Represented.

Fifteen thousand men, women, and children re-created a portion of old Europe when they staged a "Slav Nations on Parade" demonstration on the cinder runway and green turf of the field. Represented were Poles, Czechs, Russians, Slovaks, Ukrainians, Jugo-Slavs, Croatians, Serbs, Bulgarians, Slovenes, and Macedonians.

The women marchers dressed in their native costumes, which were abundantly trimmed in red, white and blue brocade. Their puffed sleeves, skull caps, and beaded scarfs were a revue of the fashions of their homeland. Men dressed in skin tight pants or in baggy pantaloons.

The display was ended with a demonstration of sokol calisthenics by 250 girls and women who wore middy blouses and short pants in pirouetting, back bending, and kneeling on the parade ground. Limber as rubber, the girls moved in perfect unity.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BOB BECKER

Outdoors Has Surprises.

July 19, 1942.

Farm and suburban residents may expect to see all sorts of oddities in the world of birds and animals. Anything may happen. Wild birds may drop in and stay with domesticated species, as was the case on the Du Page county farm one spring when a migrating mallard decided to call the farm its home and refused to continue north in the spring.

The American bittern (top) and the Least bittern.

Occasionally an unusually interesting wild bird may appear even in the city and cause much excitement. For example, Miss Jeanette Wenstrom, a reader of this column, writes that a strange bird made its appearance at her home and no one has been able to identify it. Neighbors suggested that it might be a "marsh bird from the Carolinas."

Sits and Stares.

This feathered visitor landed on the roof of a cottage. It is described as having a rather long bill, a "streamlined head," and being about 18 inches high or the size of a big chicken. This visitor wasn't frightened by shouts. It just sat on top of the roof and stared at a crowd of observers.

Miss Wenstrom took a small snapshot of the bird from which we are able to identify it as a bittern. No other marsh bird has a silhouette like a bittern or "thunder pumper," as it sometimes is called.

Hoity Toity.

When you surprise this bird in a marsh it stands with its head and bill uplifted in such a manner that you get the impression it is attempting to assume a snobbish pose. Actually it's a habit of the bird when it is alarmed and watchful.

The bittern nests in northern Illinois. It is a marsh or slough bird which sometimes drops in to feed on the farm ponds. We have seen this species along with black crowned night herons and blue herons on the farm ponds, from which the birds can get crawfish, bullheads, and similar food.

TWO WEEK DELAY SEEN IN INQUIRY INVOLVING BIDDLE

Prosecutor Too Busy Now for Anti-Trust Case.

San Francisco, Cal., July 19 [Special].—The anti-trust case which a week ago brought a demand from a retiring federal grand jury for the resignation of Attorney General Francis Biddle will not be presented to the succeeding grand jury for at least two more weeks, it became apparent here today.

Joseph Alioto, the attorney who will make the presentation for the anti-trust division of the department of justice, is occupied with another case that will take at least that time.

Biddle to Reply.

Alioto, who was in charge of the anti-trust case during its first presentation in May and in June, said the evidence would be reheard by the grand jury sworn in last Monday as soon as he has completed the case with which he is busy. He denied there would be undue delay in the case, the exact nature of which has not been disclosed.

It was indicated in local offices of the department of justice's legal division that Attorney General Biddle will reply to the retiring grand jury's charges against him when the trial of the eight accused German saboteurs is completed in Washington, D. C.

U. S.-Grand Jury Dispute.

The demand for Biddle's resignation arose from a dispute between the government and the grand jury which ended its term July 11, in which the jurors disagreed with a government contention that consideration of additional evidence was necessary before indictments might be voted.

The grand jury refused to hear new witnesses the government wanted to produce, asserting they would testify "only to questions of political expediency."

CHICAGO YOUTH DROWNS; SAILOR SAVES BROTHER

Scores of bathers yesterday watched heroic efforts of a dozen swimmers to rescue two brothers who had disappeared in deep water in Lake Michigan, near Chesterton, Ind. One, Ernest Varak, 16 years old, 2430 South Albany avenue, drowned. The other, Charles, 20, was saved.

The brothers were on a picnic with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Varak. They went wading and neither could swim. When about 300 feet from shore they stepped into a hole. An unidentified sailor from Navy pier saved Charles.

Edward Jarecki, 17, of 2228 North Seeley avenue, drowned in Third lake, in Lake county, when swimming toward shore from a sinking rowboat.

Elevated Trains Delayed When Bridge Won't Close

Elevated train service on north and south lines was tied up between 5:31 and 6 p. m. yesterday because of a mechanical difficulty in closing the Wells street bridge after a boat had passed. Elevated officials said the heat expanded bridge steel and caused the trouble. Four south side trains and three north side trains were affected by the 29 minute delay.

JAN. 1, 1941, RENT TO BE URGED FOR BLIGHTED AREAS

Reduction of rents in blighted and substandard areas of Chicago to Jan. 1, 1941, levels instead of the present March 1, 1942, federal rent ceiling will be proposed Tuesday at a joint meeting of Negro church and civic leaders in the Metropolitan Community church, 4100 South Park way.

Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro council, Washington, D. C., representing 4,800,000 Negroes, said rents charged in substandard Chicago districts are disproportionately high and in many cases exorbitant. He said an appeal will be made to Price Administrator Leon Henderson to readjust rent ceilings in line with services and facilities provided in substandard housing.

The Negro tenants' meeting will be attended by Bishop James A. Bray, president of the National Council of Negro churches, and representatives of Negro communities in Detroit, St. Louis, Cincinnati, New York, and other cities.

Mary Trumbull Is Engaged to James Worrall

BY JUDITH CASS.

At a party for young people on Saturday afternoon at home in Winnetka, Mrs. Charles L. Trumbull announced the engagement of her younger daughter, Mary Proctor, to James L. Worrall, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Worrall of St. Louis. Altho the wedding is to take place next Saturday, Miss Trumbull and her fiancé succeeded in surprising some of their young friends who gathered to congratulate them.

Miss Trumbull, who was introduced to society in 1936, attended the North Shore Country Day and the Roycemore schools and Monticello college. Mr. Worrall is a graduate of the University of Michigan law school. The wedding will take place at 5 o'clock next Saturday in Christ church, Winnetka, with a small reception following at home. The Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard will read the service.

Corinne Somerville and Lieut. Repsold Engaged.

Further interesting romantic news comes from Mr. and Mrs. John S. Somerville of Evanston and Sarasota, Fla., who are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Corinne, to Lieut. Nelson Bradford Repsold of Evanston, son of Louis William Repsold of Rochester, Minn. Miss Somerville was graduated from Dana hall and from Vassar college. Lieut. Repsold is a graduate of Amherst college and of the Yale law school and also attended the Harvard business school. He is now in the army air force.

At a small party at home in Winnetka on Saturday afternoon Mrs. Frances J. Winscott announced the engagement of her daughter, Ann Elizabeth, to George Wilcox Stokes, son of Mrs. Elmo G. Stokes and the late Mr. Stokes, also of Winnetka. Miss Winscott's father is John McKinlay Winscott of Chicago.

Mr. Stokes was at home on leave from the navy's indoctrinal school at the University of Notre Dame to receive congratulations with his fiancée. Miss Winscott was graduated from Smith college with honors in economics two years ago, and Mr. Stokes was graduated from Williams college in 1938. He will receive his commission as an ensign in the naval reserve in October, and it is expected that the wedding will take place as soon afterward as his orders permit.

Joseph Ballard and Barbara Brown to Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest S. Ballard and the unmarried members of their family will be in Greenwich, Conn., on Aug. 8 for the marriage of Joseph Duryee Ballard and Miss Barbara Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richmond L. Brown of Greenwich. Miss Mary Ballard, the Ballards' debutante daughter, will be one of two bridesmaids, and Miss Brown will have her sister, Miss Elizabeth Brown, as maid of honor.

Mr. Ballard, who is a private in the army, is not getting a furlough, but it was decided to have the wedding at this time even if he and his bride are not able to go away on a wedding trip. Nor will Miss Brown join her bridegroom at his army camp for the present, as he is taking his basic training and she would be able to see him only occasionally. Miss Brown, who is studying to be a bacteriologist, may return to her classes at Vassar to continue her work until her husband's plans are definitely known.

One of Mr. Ballard's sisters, Mrs. Stewart Boal, and Mr. Boal are on a short holiday in the east, having gone to an old family place in Garrison, N. Y.

Junior C. Ives Waldos Are Parents of a Son.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Ives Waldo Jr. [Marie Sergardi] are being congratulated on the birth of a son on July 11 at the Evanston hospital. The baby, a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo of Winnetka, will be named for his father and paternal grandfather.

Altho the Lake Geneva Garden club held a garden tour this summer instead of its usual flower show, Lake Geneva still will have a flower show, for the annual Wisconsin state gladiolus show will be held at Horticultural hall Aug. 8 and 9. The show heretofore has been held in Madison or Milwaukee. Gladioli always are among the most beautiful displays at the Lake Geneva Garden club's show, so that lake gardeners will not be deprived, after all, of exhibiting their gorgeous blooms.

The Henry Bartholomay estate, Black Point, is famed for the variety of size and color of its glads, which are especially fine this year. Developing new strains in gladioli is one of Mr. Bartholomay's hobbies. Charles F. Fleming, superintendent of the Daniel Peterkin game preserve and wild life refuge at Lake Geneva, will be chairman of the gladiolus show.

Chicagoans in Services Win War Promotions.

John Franklin Wallace has been promoted from second to first lieutenant in the army air corps.

The Pan-American council will meet at 12:30 o'clock on Thursday in the Crystal room of the Hotel Sherman to hear a Brazilian educator and scientist, Dr. Hernane Tavares de Sa, speak on "The Future of Brazilian Relations with the United States." Arrangements for the luncheon are being handled by Mrs. Joseph W. Sharp and Mrs. Edward M. Tourtelot Jr., co-chairmen of the social committee. Among those assisting are Mrs. Hoyt Thompson, Mrs. John Turner, Mrs. Stuart Dawson, Mrs. De Witt Davis III., Mrs. John Baird, and Miss Marie Stevenson.

Women in War Work

By India Moffett

The quantity of the first collection of tin cans is satisfactory, but the quality is not as good as it is hoped it will be in the future, William L. McFetridge, director of salvage, has asked us to tell housewives. Apparently women have not learned exactly how to prepare the cans for collection. Mr. McFetridge asks us to repeat the instructions. Wash the label off, if possible, thoroly cleanse the can, open both ends and remove them or tuck them in. Flatten out the can by putting it on the floor and stepping on it, but do not crush it so that daylight cannot be seen between the sides.

This last bit of advice is important, because in the detinning process the cans are submerged in a solution which has to boil over the cans for two and one-half hours. If the cans are crushed, the solution does not reach every part of the surface. This prevents the tin from being salvaged and the rest of the can is no good as scrap.

Tin cans must be kept in a separate container, not with garbage or trash. City garbage men will collect them once a week. Ten tons were collected on the first day of the drive, last Thursday, but only three and one-half tons were suitable for treatment.

Nutrition is a word American housewives have known for some time, but every day it becomes more and more a part of their everyday conversation and thought, as the knowledge of the value of proper eating becomes more widespread.

Illinois, with 65 consumer interest centers, has taken the lead in one phase of the job of protecting the health of those at home, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham and Rep. Bernice Van der Vries, co-chairmen of the women's division, Illinois State Council of Defense, were told Saturday by the Washington office of OPA. The office said that Illinois has the most comprehensive consumer interest organization in the country. The women's division, representing more than 700,000 women, has coöperated with OPA, the Illinois nutrition committee and other groups in establishing the 65 centers.

Mrs. Upham and Mrs. Van der Vries say this is only the beginning of a program designed to place a consumer interest center in every community in Illinois. The need for the centers grows as price control, rationing and other war measures increasingly affect homes. The centers are staffed by persons trained to answer questions dealing with these measures.

"Hidden Hunger," the first official film of the national nutrition program, presented by the Federal Security agency, will have its Chicago opening on Friday at the Esquire theater. The film deals not with the sort of hunger that we all recognize, that which comes from an empty stomach, but the hunger that grows in a body that has been fed the wrong kind of food. The film was made in Hollywood with money provided by one of Chicago's packing houses. It is one of the results of a national nutritional conference called by President Roosevelt in May, 1941.

Last week there came to our desk a book entitled "Wartime Meals," written by the food editor of the New York Times, which has as its subtitle the words, "Foods for Good Nutrition." It is a sprightly book, but full of information about how to plan meals, buy the food and cook it. The author has decided that money is the thing which will be lacking in the average household during this war, so that economy is emphasized. Shortages in foodstuffs come in for their share of attention, however, and substitutes are suggested for the things that are or will be difficult or impossible to obtain.

French Music Delights Small Ravinia Crowd

BY EDWARD BARRY.

French music thrives best amid intimate surroundings, and the small audience that gathered in the drowsy afternoon heat at Ravinia Park yesterday was better suited to the character of the program presented than an overflowing crowd would have been. This reasoning will fill the Ravinia management with well justified rage, but the fact remains that the concert was a great success artistically, if not financially.

George Szell had scheduled virtually no French music for his first seven engagements as guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra here this year. Yesterday, at his eighth and last concert, he atoned for his neglect by presenting a program that began with the fourth symphony of his beloved compatriot, Dvorak, but concerned itself thereafter with the music of France exclusively.

That Mr. Szell's previous abstention was not due to lack of sympathy with French music nor inability to grasp its idiom was proved by his performances of Debussy's prelude to "The Afternoon of a Faun." This fragile music, which subtly hints rather than baldly states, and which deals with moods of a Maeterlinckian delicacy and evanescence, was presented with exquisite regard for tiny and meaningful nuance and for tonal effects compounded as much of silence as of sound.

The same composer's "Festivals," which followed, left room for a little doubt. Usually we like our ghostly marches to be a trifle ghostly. Yesterday the march section of the piece developed a roof raising sonority.

Four dances drawn from Milhaud's early "Saudades do Brazil," which had never been heard here in their orchestral form, turned out to be music fully worthy of a man who may with justice be regarded as the most provocative of present day French composers.

The surest way to drain the vitality out of folk music or music of the folk type is to harmonize and orchestrate it in a facile, conventional manner. Milhaud has retained the primitive, sultry quality of these dances by keeping first things first—that is by asking himself not whether a particular harmonic background or choice of instruments is a pretty one but by demanding to know whether it reveals and emphasizes the inherent qualities of the tunes [the qualities that make them what they are, and not Italian or Icelandic, or American Indian].

Mr. Szell and the orchestra did their part by keeping the performance in general vigorous, but at the same time giving the dances' sometimes amazing rhythmic subtleties their proper patness.

At the end the program turned back to Berlioz. The "Dance of the Will-o'-the-Wisps," "Dance of the Sylphs," and "Rákóczy" march from "The Damnation of Faust" were deftly and—in the instance of the march—thunderously presented.

One of the afternoon's best moments came in the non-French half of the program. The first theme of the scherzo of the Dvorak symphony, an intoxicating melody that resembles those of the Slavonic dances, was molded by Mr. Szell into so flexible and lovely and at the same time so perfectly natural a shape that the total effect was nothing less than breath-taking.

Carmen at Soldiers' Field.

Jane Johnston of the Chicago Opera company, whose ambition to sing in a Grant Park concert comes true tomorrow evening, has just returned from the east, where she coached with Roma Swarthout, sister of opera star Gladys Swarthout. Jane is all a-twitter about the "Carmen" costumes which Miss Swarthout will wear at Soldiers' field on Aug. 8, when the opera company presents its first open air production. The costumes, designed by Valentina, have small waisted bodices and brilliantly colored flaring skirts befitting Bizet's gypsy cigaret girl. The heavy gold jewelry, tiny fan, and hand-fringed shawl known to those familiar with the singer's portrayal of the rôle will be with her that evening, as they are good luck pieces without which she feels that her interpretation of the rôle would not be a success.

It happened in a department store elevator, according to Jinni Pfordresher. A young mother was patiently trying to find out from her small son what sort of a uniform he wanted, and would he please decide on whether it would be an army or navy outfit. The western hemisphere debut of Shostakovich's Seventh symphony over the radio yesterday, with Toscanini conducting, recalled to Jane Gustafson, who knows her classics by virtue of many years' experience in selling phonograph records, an embarrassing situation in which she found herself the other day. A sweet faced woman asked her whether she could get her a recording of the South Dakota symphony in time for her husband's birthday. Miss G. thought fast and the little woman went away with a record of Shostakovich's Fifth.

'Cocktails at Five' Leaves Critic with Bad Hangover

"COCKTAILS AT FIVE."

Musical comedy in two acts and 12 scenes. Book and lyrics by Rowland Leigh. Music by Jean Schwartz. Staged by Mr. Leigh. Dances and ensemble directed by Boots McKenna. Scenery and costumes by Stage Costumes, Inc. Presented by the Messrs. Shubert in the Erlanger theater Sunday evening, July 19, 1942.

THE PERFORMERS.

Ruth Bond, Jack Good, Vicki George, Chet Bree, Morton Bowe, Charlotte Lansing, Hal Conklin, Joseph E. Marks, Charmaine, Betty Lou, and many others.

BY CECIL SMITH.

My biggest surprise of the summer came at intermission time at the Erlanger theater last night, when I discovered that it was only 10 o'clock. The first act of this new Shubert musical had been the sort of experience which makes an audience age visibly, and long before the intermission my own jowls had begun to sag for want of smiling, and my spine had lost some of its ability to remain at attention, for there so seldom seemed to be anything worth paying attention to.

At this point I should like to exclude from all subsequent dismal generalizations the names of Jack Good, Charlotte Lansing and Joseph E. Marks. Their individual performances were the good deeds which shone as brightly as circumstances and material permitted in a musical comedy world which was not even naughty, except in fitful and rather alarming outbursts.

The plot of "Cocktails at Five" is a triumph of disorganization; its song and dance materials are the apotheosis of mediocrity, and its long winded book is about as amusing as "The Servant in the House." The entire substance is a compendium of dregs and drivel which by comparison makes "Three After Three" [remember it?] seem in memory to have been as sparkling and lavish as "Show Boat" or "Roberta."

The first half hour or so is devoted to burlesque routines. Not a satire upon burlesque, and not a dressed up version of burlesque, like Mike Todd's "Star and Garter." Just burlesque. The climax of this element occurs when one of the high paid queens of the burleycue wheel, Charmaine, performs a standard, and I must say perfectly well executed, strip-tease, going thru dance gyrations of alleged beauty the while. Out of deference to the current code, she does not remove the last long pendant of gauze.

In due season the burlesque sequence is abandoned, and the plot begins to get in its fiendish work. I am under the impression that the story, which laboriously libels the virtue of Ruth Bond, Vicki George, and Morton Bowe, might be intelligible, if involved, to one whose interest was aroused by it. My own impression of it all is vague and confused, because I have always suffered from a rebellious refusal to pay attention to anything that deeply bored me.

Were the Messrs. Shubert, thru their press agent, pulling our leg when they spoke of an intention to take this exhibit to New York? Perhaps they do entertain serious hopes that war weary New York will not notice the jumble of revamped period settings and costumes, and the absence—with the exceptions noted—of significant talent in the cast. What with priorities and all, I think we might have been good sports about the looks of the thing, if the show had been worth staging in any fashion whatsoever, but in the special case of "Cocktails at Five" it was hard lines not to have anything pretty and fresh to look at in the way of investiture.

I hope Mr. Good will hurry back in another show, one which will do justice to his Bobby Clarkish gift for nimble buffoonery. And I hope Charlotte Lansing's warm voice and personality will also find a more alluring setting, and that Joseph E. Marks will come back to show us more of his neat, incisive gift for characterization.

The management will probably say that the critics are killing the theater. I have the jump on them, for my answer is ready. If anything in the world can kill the legitimate theater, it is a dull and unstageworthy piece like "Cocktails at Five."

SYNOPSIS.

When Juliet Johnson, New York dancer, goes to Mexico to visit her London showgirl friend, Elaine, who has married Sir James Lynn, British oil magnate, she finds her hostess invited her there to cloak an illicit romance with Harold, Earl of Festone. Six weeks later Lord Festone is murdered, and among the murder suspects are: Sir James, who threatened to kill both Harold and Elaine; Mrs. Sharon Lathrop, much married divorcee, whose first marriage Harold broke up; Philip Rankin, old friend of Sharon's and former classmate of Harold's; Maria, Elaine's maid, who had posed for some of Harold's paintings; Elaine, and even Juliet. Festone died of a bullet wound, but no gun has been found. Juliet has fallen in love with Philip, but she is afraid he is in love with Sharon, even tho he tells Juliet he loves her. Juliet sees Sir James burning letters and manages to recover enough of the charred fragments to discover they are notes of warning about Elaine's and Harold's affair, and that they were written on her own typewriter. She copies them, trying to fill in the missing lines, tears the copy up and throws it in her waste basket. The next morning the copy is gone and Juliet hides the original notes in the toes of her red evening slippers. Police find the copy in Sir James' bureau drawer. Juliet, frightened, at first denies she wrote the copy but later, when confronted by Morelos, head of the investigating police, who tells her only her finger prints are on the copy, she admits everything. But her story doesn't hold up as police fail to find the original notes in the toes of her red evening slippers. Sir James denies he ever burned or received any such letters. In the meantime, two guns and a cigaret case of Sir James' which Juliet has seen on the living room mantel after the murder, disappear. The cigaret case turns up later in Festone's home, wrapped in a handkerchief initialed "S. L." Juliet discovers it when she, Philip and Sharon sneak into the house to recover some jade elephants Sharon says belong to her. Juliet takes the handkerchief but leaves the case. As they depart, she sees Maria in the courtyard. Police question Elaine about money they think she gave Festone but she denies ever having given him any. Juliet goes to Maria's room to search for the missing letters. She fails to find them but she does find $2,000 in currency and a bank book in the name of Mary Anderson. The next day Juliet follows Maria to an orphanage, and learns from a cab driver that Maria visits her small son there each week. That night Philip asks Juliet to marry him, and just after he leaves her, some one shoots at Juliet. Sir James enters right after the shot is fired and they try to reach Philip at his club but he doesn't show up there until early morning, tho he told Juliet that he was going straight there. When Juliet talks to Maria the next morning, Maria pleads with her not to tell Elaine about the child in the orphanage.

INSTALMENT XXV.

QUESTIONS AND DENIALS.

The day had started badly. Juliet had a presentiment that it would get worse as it went along. It did. In the first place there was no call from Philip. In the second, the police arrived early and stayed late—which was annoying but not unusual. She told Morelos about the shooting—and all she had learned about Maria. He was gratifyingly impressed.

"If it is not too much trouble we would like to talk to Sir James, Señorita Johnson, and Lady Lynn," Morelos, with exquisite politeness, explained to little Tita, who scurried happily about to summon each of them.

"I don't see what you can ask," Elaine fussed. "You've asked everything. We've had policemen for breakfast, policemen for lunch, and fried policeman on canape for cocktails."

"Not everything, señora," Morelos answered with a smile, either not understanding or ignoring her sally.

They met in the curio cluttered living room. Sir James and his wife sat opposite each other. He made ineffectual efforts to smile. She scowled. Juliet, sitting between them, looked worried.

Morelos, brown suited, paced up and down the long room—shooting questions, first at one, then at another. Every one, including the usually gracious detective, was testy.

"Señorita Johnson, do you wish to talk about a cigaret case found on the floor of Lord Festone's home? It bears your finger prints—and yours only!"

Sir James and Elaine stared at Juliet.

She gasped.

"Cigaret case! Mine?" queried Sir James.

"Juliet in Harold's home!" Elaine exclaimed disbelievingly.

"I—I—was never in his home in my life," Juliet lied.

"Very well."

"You, Sir James—we have learned that Señor Rankin was teaching you how to shoot last month on your coffee plantation."

That was news to Juliet.

"What's so ominous about that?" Sir James fired back. "Can't a man learn to shoot if he wants to? I need a little recreation, don't I? Yes, Philip has been teaching me—or trying to. Can't seem to get the hang of it. He's a crack shot. Offered to teach my wife, too. She's pretty good. So he concentrated on me."

Juliet laughed.

"I learned at Coney Island—shooting ducks and pickaninnies."

Morelos turned to her, "What are pickaninnies?"

"On an island shooting babies?"

"I mean a New York amusement park," Juliet tried to explain. "The babies were clay."

Morelos turned to Lynn.

"You tell me, Sir James, that you knew of your wife's desire for a divorce only a few hours before Lord Festone died."

It was both a statement and a challenge.

"That's right."

"Then why did you tell Señor Rankin six weeks ago that you were thinking of giving your wife a divorce?"

Elaine, who had been studying Juliet's milk white face as if to learn from it why Juliet might have been in Harold's home, turned suddenly to her husband:

"James!"

"I didn't," he answered without a trace of emotion. "Either you misunderstood Mr. Rankin or he is trying deliberately to give a false impression. What I said was that it had taken me only a few weeks to learn that an old duffer shouldn't marry a young woman. Said that if I found my marriage didn't work, I'd give her a divorce."

There was a great deal more—questions and answers, answers and questions—most of which Juliet had already heard a dozen times. The interrogation went on thru the lunch hour and most of the afternoon.

Morelos returned frequently to questions about the cigaret case. Juliet, panic stricken, insisted that she knew nothing about it, and that she hadn't been in Lord Festone's home near Puente de Ixtla since his death.

Then the servants were called in. Pedro Miguel, the cook, and Tita came promptly—even enthusiastically.

"The other woman, too," Morelos ordered sharply.

Tita went to find Maria. She returned without her.

"She must have gone out," Tita giggled.

"Well, you can talk to her when she returns," Elaine said. "There isn't much these poor people can possibly tell you."

Altho his questions, for the most part, seemed aimless to the listeners, Morelos, pounding away, was satisfied with the answers. Apparently they were part of a pattern he was weaving.

While he was talking Juliet's thoughts sped homeward.

She hadn't mentioned a word about the murder in her letters. She wondered how much her family had read about the earl's death. They knew she had met him.

Wouldn't her family be amazed—and horrified—at her part in the mystery! And John had said she needed a vacation!

Morelos' orders broke the stream of thoughts.

"The other woman—I want her!" he insisted.

Tita went again to find Maria and again returned with the report that Maria wasn't in.

"Any one know where she might be?"

Each shook his head in turn.

The phone tingled at last. It was Philip. Juliet ran to talk to him.

"Sorry to have been rude this morning, darling, but I was out all night with a fellow I know—Percy Dowd—and I was sleepy. When you get to know me better, you'll know that I'm nobody's pet lamb when I'm waked up out of a sound sleep," he apologized.

She was so glad to hear his voice, she'd have forgiven him anything. She told him that Morelos appeared to be about thru with his questioning, and that she was dying to see him.

"I'll be tied up with some work until about 10 o'clock tonight," he explained. "Can you meet me in the plaza?"

"But why can't you come here?" she objected. "I'm afraid to walk up there alone."

"O, don't be silly, darling."

"But somebody shot at me last night, Philip—that's what I wanted to talk to you about——"

"Shot at you! You're dreaming!"

Nothing could convince him that she wasn't fooling. A fine thing to joke about, she thought! At length he agreed to call for her in his car at the patio gate.

"Stand outside and wait for me."

With British stubbornness he was adamant about going in.

When the police left, the girls retired to Elaine's pleasant, frilly room. Lynn looked longingly after his wife.

"You know, Julie," Elaine said, stretching out on the silken bed coverlet. "I'm really awfully sorry that this spoiled your vacation."

"Well, I'm sorry, too—for your sakes—for everybody's—but you know if this hadn't happened I wouldn't know Philip so well. I know that's selfish of me, but——"

Then Juliet remembered that she hadn't told Elaine about herself and Philip. She remedied that omission—her eyes bright with happiness.

"My little sister, Hyacinth, prophesied I'd fall in love down here," she laughed, purposely omitting Hyacinth's remarks about a title.

Elaine jumped up, threw her arms about Juliet and kissed her.

"You'll have love even if I won't. I'm so happy for you. We can have the wedding right here," she said enthusiastically.

Educator Lashes 'Chaotic' Use of Colleges in War

Washington, D. C., July 19 (AP).—George F. Zook, president of the American Council on Education, asserted today "the failure of the government to develop a comprehensive plan" for utilizing colleges and universities in the war effort had created chaos among these institutions and their students.

Moreover, he said, that army and navy recruiting programs for college students "are unrelated to any unified and comprehensive war manpower policy."

He added that the programs "bid fair to expose the colleges to the charge of becoming shelter houses from the draft for patriotic young men who want to do their part in winning the war, but who are confused as to what that part should be."

Both services have been accepting students in the reserve and allowing them to continue their education.

Zook contended that the average college student now is so confused by the "enlisted reserve" recruiting programs that he doesn't know whether he should remain in school or enlist, despite advice by President Roosevelt that he should remain at his studies. He also expressed an opinion that the draft age soon would be lowered, "further confusing the college situation, unless the government devises a definite program."

The contentions were supported by a group of college presidents and were embraced in a letter addressed to Man Power Chairman Paul V. McNutt, Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of Navy Knox and Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director.

Orphans Will Pay Visit to Industrial Museum

Children from the Angel Guardian orphanage will visit the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park tomorrow, with De Soto council members of the Ladies of Isabella as their hostesses. Family Size No Factor in Child's Life

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

In spite of what many people believe, to be one of several children does not automatically insure that child happiness, satisfactory companionship, and normal adjustment to life in general.

It may bring about that result, but it does not automatically do so. The result, with a large family as with a small one, depends almost entirely upon the parents.

Children in a large family can be shy. They can be anti-social. They can be overindulged. They can be utterly spoiled, especially if they happen to be the youngest.

They can be jealous. They can be made to feel inferior. They can be ill at ease with adults. They can be uncoöperative.

Children in a large family can be just as much all these things as an only child can be. I know of one family [all practically grown up] in which many of those very conditions exist. They are gifted young people, they are handsome, have means and educational and cultural advantages, but they are not fulfilling themselves nor fitting into life and living.

They are all highly individual and rather on the temperamental side, but they are wonderful human material, and would have a great deal to give to others and, perhaps, the world at large, and should be a great satisfaction to themselves, if only they were handled wisely and if only their father and mother were themselves disciplined and lived in reasonable harmony.

Some parents today torment themselves with the suspicion that, whenever their children are difficult, it's because their family is small, or because they have, perhaps, only one child. I do think it adds to life for children to have brothers and sisters, but what makes a child happy and well adjusted is not the size of his family, but, rather, having a wise as well as loving father and mother.

GASOLINE ALLEY—AFTER LONG OBSERVATION

Stingy Man Can Darken Domestic Sky

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Mrs. Clark [that isn't her real name] has five young children. Her husband makes $160 a month, yet he gives her only $30 twice a month to feed and clothe the family, pay insurance and the many incidentals that come up. Because she can't buy enough clothes to last her children for a week, she has to be continually washing and ironing to keep her youngsters neat and clean. The cost of soap is a big item in her budget and her worries.

A stingy man certainly cannot be changed overnight into a miracle of generosity. Nagging, threats, and quarrels are not likely to reform him. They will not cure the root of his trouble, fear.

Mrs. Clark's task is not an easy one. Yet, perhaps, she can attack his fear by praising him for his ability to make good wages. If she builds up his confidence in his powers as a provider, he may be inspired to part with more of his money. If she makes him feel big and capable, he won't be so afraid to give her more.

He must have some love for his children. She should encourage and cultivate it. She might point out the good qualities he has bequeathed to May or John. When she does manage to achieve a new frock for one of the girls, or a suit for one of the boys, she should draw her husband's attention to how nice the youngster looks.

She should encourage her children to thank their father often.

Have you ever used self-rising flour? It can be a help to you, if you're a working wife, or busy cook and mother. It's a combination of flour, leavening and salt, and may be used in any kind of baking except yeast breads.

When baking with self-rising flour and sour milk, sour cream, molasses, or other acid-containing liquid, it is necessary to add a little soda to neutralize the acid. One-fourth teaspoon usually is enough, but this good molasses muffin formula requires ½ teaspoon because of the presence of both molasses and buttermilk.

Molasses Muffins.

1 egg
½ cup molasses
¼ buttermilk or sour milk
½ teaspoon soda
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons melted fat
2 cups sifted self-rising flour

Beat egg. Add molasses, buttermilk, soda, melted fat. Mix thoroly and stir into flour. Do not beat batter smooth. It should be lumpy. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake at 425 degrees for 25 minutes.

If you use plain flour instead of self-rising, sift 1 teaspoon baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt with it.

Cheese horns are quickly made with self-rising flour. They're delectable!

Cheese Horns.
[1 dozen.]

2 cups self-rising flour, sifted
½ cup grated sharp cheese
4 tablespoons butter
⅔ cup milk

Mix cheese and flour. Cut in shortening until mixture is in coarse lumps. Add milk, stir to blend, and turn dough out onto a lightly floured board. Knead gently for 30 seconds, then divide dough into two parts and roll each out into a circle, ¼ inch thick. Cut into six pie-shaped pieces. Roll each piece, starting at the large end. Bake on an ungreased sheet in a 425 degree oven for 15 minutes.

With plain flour, add 4 teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt, and sift several times together before cheese and butter are added.

With all the wonderful fresh fruits and berries which are in season right now, we can make the most luscious of shortcakes and fruit cobblers. The juiciest of the fruits, strawberries, raspberries, and peaches, for example, are best for shortcakes, the ones which need a little cooking to bring out flavor and juice are best for cobblers. Plums, blueberries, and cherries come under this classification.

This dough may be used for either shortcake or cobbler.

Fruit Shortcake or Cobbler.
[Six to eight servings.]

2 cups sifted self-rising flour
¼ cup butter
⅔ cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
Sweetened berries or other fruit

Cut butter into flour until mixture is in coarse lumps. Add milk, stir, and turn dough out onto a lightly floured board. Pat out gently with the palms, dot with bits of the extra butter, fold over, and give the dough a quarter turn. Repeat this three or four times. Then roll dough out to ½ inch in thickness. Cut out biscuits [for shortcake] and bake on an ungreased sheet at 450 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes. Split and butter biscuits while hot. Fill and cover with sweetened fresh berries or other fruit. If you're making a cobbler, put the sweetened fruit into a greased baking dish and top it with the dough, rolled to fit the shape of the pan. Bake at 425 degrees until the fruit is tender and the crust browned.

Four teaspoons of baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt must be added to the recipe if plain flour is used in place of the self-rising.

TODAY'S PRIZE RECIPE

Baked Stuffed Cucumbers.
[For company luncheons]
[Serves eight]

4 medium to large cucumbers
Salt
1 cup peeled, chopped tomatoes
1 small onion, chopped
1½ cups minced cooked chicken
1 tablespoon tomato catsup
¼ tablespoon sugar [optional]
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 cup medium white sauce
Buttered bread crumbs

Peel cucumbers and cut in half lengthwise. Scoop out seedy pulp, leaving shell from ½ to 1 inch thick. Sprinkle with salt. Chop cucumber pulp, discarding seeds. Add this to tomatoes, along with chopped onion, chicken, catsup, sugar, salt, and pepper. Make white sauce using half chicken broth and half cream, and stir into chicken mixture. Fill cucumber shells with this and place in baking pan. Bake in moderate [350 degree] oven until tender, 30 to 40 minutes. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs just before serving.

Looking at Hollywood

—By Hedda Hopper—

Hollywood, Cal., July 19.—Bob Hope, while reclining on swank regency furniture in his dressing room suite at Goldwyn's, says he's having pictures made of the whole layout to show Y. Frank Freeman, because at Paramount he's been dressing in a clothes closet. . . . When he came on the set of "They Got Me Covered," Dorothy Lamour came by and mussed up his hair. "Don't do that!" he yelled. "I love to—besides it's in the script" said Dorothy. Hope cracked, "Trouble with you, after playing all those natives, you can't rehearse a scene unless you're in a tree with an ape!"

David Lewis may be able to get Gary Cooper for "Frenchman's Creek." 'Cause why? 'Cause Gary's negotiating a new contract with Goldwyn. . . . Sam couldn't get Cary Grant, because Barbara Hutton had gotten there first. So he hired four stilt walkers who looked like Grant to carry sandwich boards with "Pride of the Yankees" on them.

Try It Sometime.

Olivia De Havilland's health was reported bad. Well, she certainly looks in the pink to me, but confided she went to a doctor, who took tests of everything, finally said there was nothing wrong with her. Gave her a book on care and feeding of horses. She couldn't see any similarity between a horse and herself, but the doctor said, "Buy one—then ride it!" And added, "There's nothing so good for the inside of a person as the outside of a horse." She's now braggin' about how much she likes the rôle of the refugee in "Princess O'Rourke." . . . Norman Krasna, who wrote it, also is directing. Told me that when he and Harold Ross borrowed half a million dollars for "The Devil and Miss Jones," they didn't have money enough to insure the life of Charles Coburn, who co-starred with Jean Arthur, so they wrote the value of the picture against his health. And you can imagine the turn he gave them when they caught him late one night doing a conga in a night club. "Just imagine! If he had lamed himself in that dance, we never could have finished the picture," said Krasna.

So It Is Said.

It seems too macabre, but I'm told it's true that Jean Harlow's body has been especially embalmed so that it's in perfect condition and can be seen. It's in a glass case. Once a year, her mother takes her hairdresser and the latest model gown, and Jean's dress is changed and her hair redone. And Jean's as beautiful as ever. . . . Four years ago Greer Garson, when she first visited Grauman's Chinese, was fascinated looking at the famed footprints. Now she gets her own footprints in the cement next Thursday.

Running Out of Words.

Freddie Brisson's parting gift to Rosalind Russell is nearly worn out. It's an illuminated globe of the world, which Rosalind uses every night, sticking pins in the advance and retreat. She says it now looks as battered as the world Hitler started to conquer. . . . Cowboy Tex Ritter loved leading the parade down Long Beach way, but said it was a little disconcerting—The onlookers kept cheering for Leo Carrillo! . . . Billy Gilbert was watching a movie the other night when a woman with a baby in her arms sat down beside him. When bombs started bursting over London on the screen, baby started yowling. Just them a man in back of her tapped her on the shoulder and said, "Madame, I wonder if you'd please remove your brat!"

Them's Orders.

I asked Capt. Hewlett Wheless, when he was working on a government short [and incidentally, what an unassuming, modest hero he is], how it felt going into combat with the odds 30 to one against him. He colored up and said, "Gosh! I never even thought about it. When your commander says, 'Go'—you git!"

Always a Helping Hand.

Leo McCarey's all hopped up over 11 year old Eugene Marum in "Once Upon a Honeymoon." Child had to speak perfect German, and came thru an organization which aids refugees. His mother is a waitress at Metro. . . . Red Skelton tells this in "Whistling in Dixie." Two drunks fall asleep in their car, wake up, and see a flock of balloon barrages in sky. "Look!" says one, "flying pink elephants! Ain't science wonderful?" And goes right back to sleep. . . . Jack Oakie's new parrot is anti-social. His vocabulary consists of the one word—"Sca-ram," but how it sounds! . . . Pola Negri, whose Hollywood comeback didn't come back, dried her tears and went back to New York and her playboy.

Right, but Wrong.

Scenarist Lee Loeb was entertaining Harold Buchman when they veered over to the subject of racial characteristics. "Now, take your houseboy," said Buchman. "It's easy to see his parents come from the Philippines." "No sir," said the boy. "Do you mean to tell me your parents didn't come from the Philippines?" "Positively not," the boy insisted. "They're still there." . . . Diana Lewis spent days at the studio doing water scenes for "Whistling in Dixie." Then on Sunday she and Bill Powell gave a swimming party. . . . Barry Nelson, newcomer, was stopped by an autograph seeker outside the studio and asked whether he wasn't Barry Nelson. "Why, yes," he replied, expecting anything. "Well," spoke up the fan, "get Spencer Tracy to autograph a picture for me."

Good Morning!

It's the woman behind the man, you know, who can—if she really cares, one way or t'other—boost him along or kick him down the stairs.

Most great men are great because of their feminine picker uppers. . . . Some great men are that way in spite of the kicker downers. . . . This tale is about one of the latter category—a beautiful dreamer who would have stopped short with the dreams had it not been for a little woman — who wouldn't talk. . . . At least she wouldn't until she was a hundred years old—and then—only to the right party. . . .

The story opens upon an OCCASION. . . . The statue of Sen. Ethan Hoyt is to be unveiled in the public square of Hoyt City—which he had built. . . . Reporters from big city dailies are on the alert, for it has been reported that "Hannah Sempler is going to talk." Hannah Sempler who lives in the great house upon the hill, overlooking the square. . . . Hannah to whose home the great man had come to die, many years ago. WHY? Hannah has never told. . . .

Reporters storm her house . . . . She drives them out. . . . But a young girl biographer who had been kind and courteous to an old, old lady, is told to remain and to her Hannah Sempler—who once had been Hannah Hoyt!—tells her story which starts in a "stuffy Philadelphia home in 1848" and carries its characters thru covered wagon days, prairie city building, gold rushes, river floods, romances, tragedy and the strange array of circumstances built on that tragedy, which separate the great man and his lady for the period which should have been their happiest together.

Excepting for a bit of faultiness about the chin, Barbara Stanwyck's old lady makeup is just about the best I've ever seen—and she plays the centenarian magnificently. . . . She's charming as a young girl—but not nearly so beautiful then as when, a mature woman, she acquiesces gracefully to a bitter fate and lives aristocratically an unaristocratic life. . . .

Joel McCrea plays the "great man" with considerable aplomb but, to my way of thinking, he's not one two three with Brian Donlevy as the undemanding [gambler] "other man" in the heroine's life. . . . Literally speaking, she usurps his love at the point of a gun. Unintentionally—but completely.

Katharine Stevens, playing the young biographer, hasn't much to do but listen. . . . A feather in her cap that she is so impressive in so small a rôle. . . . Good work by all other players.

The picture's too long, but for most of the time it keeps your interest alert.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Would you boys and girls like to see a movie about the school which has trained many of our outstanding generals—including Grant, Pershing and our fighting leader in the present war—Gen. Douglas MacArthur?

Well, here's your chance. On July 30, 100 boys and girls will have an opportunity to see "Ten Gentlemen from West Point," an exciting movie which tells the story about the first days of our famous military school.

George Montgomery, Laird Cregar, John Sutton and Maureen O'Hara are outstanding in the large cast, and, of course, no story about West Point would be complete without an army mule. That part is well played by U-No, who proves a great help to the cadets when they need him badly.

In addition to this thrilling film, my party guests will see Horace Heidt and his famous orchestra, who will be on the stage at the Chicago theater.

If you'd like to come to this party, just sit down and write me a letter, telling me why you think you'd enjoy it. If you seem really enthusiastic, you may be selected as one of the winners.

However, you can't possibly be a winner if you don't write that letter all by yourself, and remember to tell me your full name, address and age. Please don't ask for invitations for your friends, and be sure to mail your letter so that it will reach me not later than next Thursday morning.

There are no other rules—so if you want to be at the Chicago theater with me on July 30, send off that letter to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

The province of bidding is the investigation of all possible contracts. Too many players make the mistake made by South in the following deal.

♠ 6
♥ KJ93
♦ 875
♣ 107543

WEST
♠ K74
♥ 54
♦ QJ106

♠ Q953
♥ A72
♦ A932
♣ Q6

SOUTH
♠ AJ1082
♥ Q1086
♦ K4
♣ AK

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 spade	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	2 spades	[Final bid]

South went down one at his two spade contract, not a large loss in itself, but representing quite a difference from "what might have been." For, as inspection of the deal quickly reveals, a game in hearts would have been easy.

However, far from arriving at a game contract in hearts, it must be observed that hearts were not even mentioned by either North or South. What is more, the bidding was not obviously bad, not bad enough, at any rate, to draw comments from any of the players involved. The one spade opening was, of course, correct. North could not dream of responding with two hearts, or even two clubs, with such a meager honor trick holding and such sketchy suits; hence his negative no trump was the most aggressive action conceivable. [A pass would not have been conspicuously timid.] It was South's rebid that upset the applecart.

Instead of making the uninformative rebid of his first mentioned spade suit South should have been delighted at the opportunity to show his other major suit, hearts. Evidently the great superiority of his spades over his hearts led him to think that a spade rebid was in order, but despite the fact that millions of players would feel likewise, this was highly superficial reasoning. South's correct rebid was two hearts. Whether or not North would have raised that bid depended largely on his conservatism or aggressiveness, and on his faith in South. But even if the partners reached no higher than two hearts, making four, they would have been almost 300 points better off than at two spades.

Fringe Swings Into Favor on Fall Costumes

BY REA SEEGER.

With the fall upbeat of fashions comes the swing of fringe, dramatizing the newest daytime dresses in dull or shiny black, and the newest dinner clothes, slim, romantic and super-flattering in smart black or in colors and snowy white. This revival of fringe as a trim or accent illustrates the resourcefulness of the designers. . . . so far apparently fringe is not wanted by the armed services designers, so we get the stuff and the results are something to rate medals!

Long sweeping fringe covers some of the dinner dresses from hip to hemline, with some more of the lovely trim going round the cape collarlines or attached to the bodice tops in unusual details. One of the most sensational dinner gowns in town is snowy white with white fringe on the skirt and more knotted to the bodice top forming a cover for the upper half of the sleeves. It's one perfect way of emphasizing the precisely straight silhouette the new fashions introduced after restrictions of material were announced.

Daytime dresses with fringe are especially attractive, cool to look at and to wear. The fringe is attached in tiers, in double rows, and a few of the models have the entire length of skirt covered with silken swing of fringe. Narrower bands decorate the blouse and bodice tops, as well as the brief sleeves.

You have to see them really to appreciate the graceful silhouettes achieved. Fringe is due for a tremendous vogue. You'll see it on coats, thick and swank, you'll wear it on sleeves, on hats, on scarves, gloves and the dress parade separate jackets used for color and fabric contrast for daytime as well as dinner clothes.

Women's College Board Gives Benefit Party Today

The Women's College Board of Chicago is giving a tombola party this afternoon at the Chicago College club to raise money to continue operation of the board. Among gifts to be auctioned off following luncheon is a quilt made 150 years ago in Sunderland, Mass., by the great-great-grandmother of Mrs. Oscar Hayward, chairman of the Women's College board.

Thru the Looking Glass

If the average woman were sent to a desert island, let's say for the duration, and were allowed only five or six beauty aids, you can be quite certain that one of them would be a deodorant. Every survey shows deodorants high on the list of "essentials." Women would willingly do without many other toiletries, but the deodorant, like soap, they consider of the utmost importance. It's one of the basic things, right in line with the ancient truth that cleanliness is next to godliness.

This is deodorant weather, for men as well as for women. Perspiration is unavoidable but the odor of it is unforgivable. And, of course, we never know when unseasonable heat may mar a day. Our only course is to use a deodorant or an anti-perspirant as regularly as we do a toothbrush.

One deodorant we like particularly in hot weather is in cream form but it isn't greasy. A white, light textured kind of a paste, it spreads beautifully and vanishes almost instantly, and while it doesn't claim to check perspiration completely, it does subdue the flow slightly and neutralizes all odor. It's a mild product; so far as we have been able to learn it won't irritate the most sensitive skin. It can be used not only on the armpits but on the back, where many people perspire excessively on a hot day or a strenuous one.

No matter how much you perspire, there is no danger of offensive odor when you use this. It must be applied when the skin surface is dry and clean—preferably immediately after the daily bath. It's good insurance against odor for 24 hours and often longer.

It Comes to Every One.

A woman executive, swaying back and forth on a strap on a crowded L the other evening, took a seat vacated by a slim young blonde. A moment later the woman looked up from her paper to discover the Awful Truth—the girl had given up her seat!

Now, it's one thing to be shown such consideration when your hair has turned to silver and your footsteps are faltering. But when you're still brown haired and stepping lively, it's a bit of a blow. At the office next day the story, told as a joke on herself, caused much merriment and brought forth these lines from the advertising department:

There comes a time to each of us
It's when a fair 18 year old
Gets up and gives her seat.

How spry our ev'ry step,
How clear and sparkling be our eye,
Our brain, how filled with pep.

Surrendered in defeat—
Whene'er a fair 18 year old
Gets up and gives her seat.

About Carbon Paper.

Ruth G. Hart, noting a discussion of carbon paper in this column, sends a reprint of an article from the Journal of Business Education from which can be culled these interesting facts: The invention of carbon paper is credited to Ralph Wedgewood, an Englishman, in 1802, but no practical use was made of his invention. In 1823 Cyrus P. Dakin produced a carbon paper in Concord, Mass., apparently without ever having heard of Wedgewood. He made but slow progress, tho he was listed in the New York City directory as "manifold writer," until 1868, when the Associated Press adopted carbon paper and began to buy his entire output.

"Here," continues the article, "is where the fantastic enters the story." A young man named Lebben H. Rogers decided to make a balloon ascent. With an eye to publicity he went to the local office of the Associated Press, saw the carbon paper, took several sheets, and used them to make copies of correspondence. After two years he took his find to New York, stopped off at Washington, and got a $1,500 order from the war department—the first time it was used by the government. In 1872 he took out a patent on "carbonized paper." Since then there have been numerous other patents issued on carbon paper, but he was the first person to use it for correspondence.

Mrs. Hobby Arrives at Iowa Camp.

get up at 5:45 a. m., and from then on no WAAC's time is her own.

Of the women at the camp today, who wandered around in a casual Sunday school picnic fashion, only eight were permitted to don khaki. This was for purely pictorial purposes, but they remained in it for the brief remainder of their official day, much to the envy and curiosity of their fellow WAAC's who trailed them around, examining each detail of this new uniform which they will wear for the duration of the war.

If there is still any question in the minds of the public as to the military usefulness of the WAAC's, the first WAAC's set out to dissipate that immediately upon arrival. One volunteered to fill in as a typist to relieve an army private in her barracks office so he could assemble a table. Another ran messages.

Problem for Legislators.

Bernice L. Keplinger, 37, a member of the Ohio legislature, was one of the first arrivals. She is in somewhat of a quandary about her future as she had filed for reelection before she was selected as a WAAC officer candidate. Now she cannot withdraw her name and the primary will be held Aug. 11. If she wins, she goes back to Ohio.

Behind the enlistment of a young Kansan lies a story of deep tragedy. She is Mrs. Melba Mildred Hargis, 21, of Kansas City, who is expected tomorrow. On May 14 her only child, a baby girl, died. She tried to get in touch with her husband, Lieut. Giles Hargis Jr., serving with the army engineers in British Columbia. Her telegram telling of their child's death crossed with an army telegram notifying her of her husband's death. He was drowned during maneuvers. She enlisted in the WAAC the day after enlistment for officer candidates closed, but the rules were waived and she was enrolled.

A Day of Hammering.

Altho today was Sunday, workmen here hammered, sawed, and laid brick on brick all day in an effort to expedite the conversion of this quiet old post, built for 1,500 men, into a camp in which 5,000 women can be lodged, trained, and fed at one time.

New two story classrooms, large recreation halls, barracks, and hospital wards are rising, geniilike, from the ground. Massive brick stables are being converted into barracks, old riding halls into drill rooms, theaters into chapels. Before the first frost, which comes early in Iowa, 148 additional buildings will be ready for use.

Some were here in time for breakfast. A few went to church services in the little theater which now is serving as a chapel. Lieut. Col. John MacWilliams, chaplain with the Texas cavalry for 15 years, conducted the old army general service, preluding it with a welcome for any WAACs in the congregation. After the closing hymn, "Onward Christian Soldier," he amended his welcome by adding, "This is the sweetest thing that ever happened in my life. Why, these are the picked women not only of the United States but of the whole world."

Twenty army chefs, immaculate in white caps and aprons, stood behind the cafeteria counter in the shining new mess hall to dish out roast beef, mashed potatoes, creamed peas, tomato and lettuce salad, ice cream, and army "circus water"—orangeade. Capt. John McSweeney, mess officer, had expected lackadaisical appetites, but the WAACs immediately disproved this. They cleaned their trays. "At this rate," another officer commented, "they'll put on six to 15 pounds the first month."

Barracks Littered.

Back in their quarters the girls lounged at will, transforming the neat military dormitories into a litter of cosmetics, undergarments, and cigaret stubs. The litter, they quickly learned, must go.

Many wandered into the barracks recreation hall in the basement to read, sit in the comfortable armchairs upholstered in bright blue, brown, and yellow plaids, play the piano or write letters and read the orders on the bulletin board. A model delinquency report showed some of the things to be avoided:

"Smith, A.—Shoes not shined.
"Adams, L.—Bunk untidy.
"Pierce, B.—Dust under foot locker.
"Brooke, A.—Late morning formation."

WAAC HEAD GIVES CITY GLIMPSE OF SMART UNIFORM

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby director of the women's army auxiliary corps, yesterday gave a few Chicagoans their first glimpse of the uniforms the women officers will wear. Mrs. Hobby, her secretary, Miss Smith, and the publicity director of the WAACs, Mrs. Genevieve Forbes Herrick, spent several hours in Chicago on their way from Washington, D. C., to Fort Des Moines, Ia., where the first women officers' training school for the army opens today.

Mrs. Hobby's uniform is smart and beautifully tailored. It is of khaki cotton twill, belted, with two breast-pockets with buttoned flaps and two slashed hip pockets. All pockets are nonpatch ones, according to regulations, and there are no plaits in the blouse or skirt, which is a six-gored one. The buttons are of plastic.

No French Cuffs.

To conserve material, instead of French cuffs, there are straight cuffs buttoned with one button each on the khaki shirt, which is worn with a khaki tie. Mrs. Hobby wears a gold safety pin to hold her collar together underneath the knot of the tie. On her shoulders are silver eagles and at the front of her cap is a spread golden eagle, but she is the only WAAC officer who will have these insignia. The others will have the same U. S. initials and Pallas Athene heads on their lapels as Mrs. Hobby wears.

"Why Pallas Athene?" some one asked. "For wisdom and virtue," replied Director Hobby, quickly correcting her explanation to "wisdom and victory," however. The cap, the sort made famous by the French Foreign Legion, was chosen from many styles because it seemed to be the most becoming to all types of women, Mrs. Hobby explained.

The bag Mrs. Hobby wore slung over one shoulder was a good looking, capacious one of dark brown tackle twill but this is to be replaced by simulated leather. It has been found that the twill does not wear well.

Shoe Trouble Hinted.

Mrs. Hobby's brown oxfords were regulation ones, but she was wearing service weight silk stockings instead of the rayon or cotton that will be issued to the WAAC officer candidates today at Fort Des Moines.

"I'd need the services of a chiropodist if I wore those heavy shoes," volunteered a woman sitting next to Mrs. Hobby at luncheon yesterday. Without definitely saying so, Mrs. Hobby gave the impression that the heavy shoes were the only uncomfortable part of the uniform. There are no chiropodists in the men's or the women's armies.

The 26 women from the Chicago area who are to enter the school today left last night for Fort Des Moines. Recruiting for auxiliaries [privates] will start today at the army recruiting and induction center, 515 South Franklin street.

The office will open at 7:30 a. m.

It happened in Germany after the last war! Inflation that made housewives pay thousands in German currency to buy one pound of butter. Inflation which shrank the purchasing power of wages and the value of savings. Inflation that caused hunger and suffering.

It won't happen here . . . thanks to price ceilings! We are fortunate in the United States because our Government acted in time to prevent runaway inflated prices. Washington has established price ceilings for food and other merchandise, services and even rent. With few exceptions, prices cannot go higher than those charged during March, 1942, except with government consent.

Unusually low ceiling prices at Jewel! Our prices were very low in March. This was due to Jewel's low price policy . . . and our practice of not advancing retail prices as fast as wholesale prices. As a result, many foods are now costing us more than in March. But you can still buy these foods at Jewel's low March ceiling prices.

Price ceilings cause hardships! We do not say this in the spirit of complaint. Regardless of how much it may hurt, we support the principle and objective of price ceilings. They are a guard against inflation and hunger. Inflation would bring ruin for everyone.

Everyone must work together! The unselfish cooperation of everyone can spread the cost of resisting inflation. We have just had an experience that supports this simple truth. In instances of actual severe hardship we know that the Office of Price Administration will treat everyone fairly and act promptly. We know that our government is doing its level best to resist the pressures that make our dollars worth less.

Years ago Jewel established posted prices! Government regulations require only that certain ceiling prices be posted. We have always posted prices. You have always been entitled to this protection and information. We will show price ceilings in all of our stores for all items covered by the Office of Price Administration's order, and not just a few.

Price ceilings have our support! Shortages of merchandise and larger pay checks due to the war effort cause prices to go up. If uncontrolled, the things we need rise out of reach of most of us. That's why we need price ceilings. They guard America against inflation.

CARDS BEAT DODGERS TWICE; 2 STARS HURT

AMATEURS START TAM O' SHANTER'S BIG WEEK TODAY

ALL-AMERICAN EVENT DRAWS FIELD OF 240

Open Meet Follows; $16,800 in Awards.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Chicago today again becomes the capital of 1942 golf in this country with the opening of the All-American Amateur tournament at the Tam o' Shanter Country club, located on Howard avenue at Caldwell road.

With a field matching in competitive brilliance any national event of recent years, the All-American would seem to be a goodly spot of golf in its own right, but such is not the case, for it is only part of the unusual show being offered Chicago district fans for the next seven days. On Thursday those simon pure swingers who have been beaten are eligible to get in on the start of the Tam o' Shanter open championship, carrying such valuable prizes to the pros as $2,500 for first, $1,750 for second, $1,250 for third, and $1,000 for fourth. In all, a total of $16,800 in cash and war bonds will be distributed come next Sunday evening's conclusion of the richest golf party of the year.

Amateurs Play 18 Holes Today.

Today's doings will find a field of approximately 240 amateurs playing the first eighteen holes of the 36 hole qualifying round for the All-American amateur. Another eighteen will be transacted tomorrow, with the low 64 scorers for the two rounds of medal play gaining the match play brackets. This will open with a pair of 18 hole man-to-man duels on Wednesday, a procedure which will be repeated Thursday. Friday's semi-finalists in the amateur will go 36 holes, as will the championship rivals in Saturday's final battle.

Coincident with the opening of match play in the All-American amateur on Wednesday will be the qualifying prelude to the Tam o' Shanter open proper, first round of which will be played Thursday, continuing at 18 holes daily at intervals thru Sunday's stretch round. The Wednesday session will see the Open field of 200 players completed by those men who have not qualified for it thru professional exemption off of past performances or thru match play qualification in the All-American amateur.

Here's the Lineup.

Thus, 64 places in the Open field of 200 will have been filled by the players who make the match play grade at the end of tomorrow's qualifying round in the All-American amateur. Another approximate 50 rôles in the Open will be attended to by the exemptions granted outstanding performers. This will leave about 86 places open to these competing in Wednesday's Open qualifying round.

For the benefit of those who may be puzzled by the fact that amateurs will be playing match and medal play golf at the same time, it should be pointed out that no stymies will be used during the amateur and that every simon pure entrant will hole out during his matches. All amateur losers will be re-paired in the Open field. This latter will be reduced to the 85 low scorers for the first two rounds on Thursday and Friday.

Arrange Special Awards.

A number of special awards will be made in addition to the cash offered to pros and war bonds to amateurs. The first three professional scorers on the open qualifying round Wednesday will be rewarded with cash gifts of $250, $150, and $100. George S. May, Tam o' Shanter president, also has offered $500 to the professional who can lower the course record of 65, now held jointly by Leonard Dodson of Kansas City and John Revolta of Evanston.

THE Cubs' home attendance is expected to hit half a million a few days after the team returns from its next road trip. . . . Not bad for a club that hasn't been in the first division for more than a year. . . . Charles Comiskey II., future president of the White Sox, plans to enroll in a military school next fall. . . . Bob Madry, University of North Carolina's veteran athletic publicity director, is Chapel Hill's new mayor. . . . Lou Novikoff is so elated with his awakening as a hitter of major league caliber that he's started telling Jimmy Foxx what Jim's doing wrong. . . . Among the entrants in the $15,000 Tam o' Shanter Open Golf tournament, which begins today, is Leonard Dodson, who was almost unknown in big time golf until he shot an opening round of 65 for the course record in the same event a year ago. . . . Dodson, famed for his willingness to back his golf with money, asked George May, promoter of the tournament, what he was offered to break 65 in this year's meet. . . . In the deep south there's no argument about the toughest 1942 football schedule. . . . Wishful Thinking.

I am on the bashful side, so I would like to take this roundabout way to be the first to put in my bid for the newly released hand of Miss Claire Trevor. I am not only available but anxious to help her forget her marital troubles. Furthermore, I am entirely domesticated and, with the proper incentive, I think I could be trained to stay home nights. I reserve the right to withdraw this offer at any time I see fit. This will leave me free in case Miss Veronica Lake or Miss Hedy La Marr wish to get in line. —Nivram.

Mother's Fancy Towels.

When dad and I start washin' up
It seems we always choose
The towels which have been set aside,
The ones we're not to use.
But many times those fancy towels
Get mixed in with the rest
Just because we've used her best.

Each time that we clean up a bit
Before the evening meal,
We'll go and raid the towel drawer
And a clean towel we will steal.
The fancy towels are for the guests,
That's clearly understood,
But dad and I just sometimes feel
The best is none too good.

We'll reach into the towel drawer
And make no special fuss
To pick out certain towels because They're all the same to us.
But . . . mother knows the difference!
And sometimes nearly "growls"

Rosar Jumps Club; Yanks Sign Hemsley

New York, July 19 (AP).—Forty thousand baseball fans who turned out for today's double header between the New York Yankees and the Chicago White Sox were surprised to find Rollie Hemsley, released only two days ago by the Cincinnati Reds, catching for the Yankees in the opening game.

Yankee officials, announcing that Hemsley had been signed as a free agent, disclosed that Catcher Buddy Rosar jumped the club last night and departed for his home in Buffalo, N. Y., to take a civil service examination for the police force of that city.

With their first string catcher, Bill Dickey, benched by a shoulder injury, the Yankees would have been placed in somewhat of a predicament by Rosar's action if Hemsley had not been available.

Rosar Denied Leave.

Manager Joe McCarthy revealed that Rosar asked permission last week to go home but said he had denied the request because of the team's shortage of catchers. McCarthy said he did not plan to suspend Rosar immediately.

"I will withhold decision in the matter," he said, "until I can come to a decision fair to all parties."

Hemsley, who had batted only .113 this season with Cincinnati, made five hits in eight times at bat today.

TAKES POLICE EXAM.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 19 (AP).—Buddy Rosar had little to say today at his Buffalo home about his sudden trip from New York.

"Call me in two or three days, I'll be here," Rosar said, after revealing he had taken the civil service examination this afternoon.

Earlier, Rosar was quoted as saying, "This is a sane desire for protection. Baseball is my meat and drink right now, but no one can say when I'll go out there and meet with an accident that might end my baseball days."

Peter J. Naples, a civil service commissioner, said Rosar was one of nearly 1,000 candidates in the examination. The results would not be known until the middle of August, he added.

BLOZIS REGAINS LEAD AT TACKLE IN ALL-STAR POLL

Gets Huge Vote in East; Herndon Moves Up.

Al Blozis, Georgetown's giant tackle, has beaten his way back as one of the leaders in the nation-wide football poll to select the starting College All-America eleven to meet the world champion Chicago Bears in the ninth annual All-Star game at Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 28.

The 255 pound lineman, who also holds the world's shotput record, led the country's leading tackles last Tuesday and Wednesday. Then he began to slip and had dropped to eighth place in yesterday's standings. However, he rose to the top again when the Washington Times-Herald reported 68,909 votes. Al's total vote is 92,754, approximately 33,000 more than Northwestern's Alf Bauman has obtained.

Herndon Challenges Bauman.

Clarence Herndon of Nebraska, who participated against Clark Shaughnessy's Stanford eleven in the 1941 Rose bowl game, is challenging Bauman on a flood of votes from the Omaha World-Herald. Herndon trails Alf by only 1,100 votes.

Several Wisconsin cities continued their drives to place Dick Erdlitz, Northwestern quarter back, on the starting team. Erdlitz maintained the individual leadership of the poll with 166,293 votes. His old teammate, Don Kruger, remained in second place as followers of the former Fenwick High school star gathered hundreds of ballots along the city's beaches. Erdlitz also received 7,650 votes reported by the Hartford, Conn., Times yesterday.

Iowans Going Strong.

Iowa's leading candidates—Al Couppee, Bill Green, Jim Walker, and Bill Diehl—improved their positions in the standing as Hawkeye ballots came in from the Iowa City, Ia., Daily Iowan and the Cedar Rapids Gazette. Diehl advanced to third place with a total of 34,293 votes. He trails Darold Jenkins of Missouri, who leads the centers with 67,494, and Detroit's Vincent Banonis, who has 43,708 votes.

Southerners also enjoyed a big day with returns from the Memphis Commercial-Appeal and the Austin, Tex., Tribune. The leaders in the Austin poll are four University of Texas candidates—End Mal Kutner, Quarter Back Jack Crain, Full Back Pete Layden, and Half Back Noble Doss. Bob Gude, Vanderbilt center, received 8,635 votes in Memphis, and Holt Rast, Alabama end, collected 3,673.

Bruce Smith, Minnesota's player of the year, led the parade of Gophers, obtaining substantial votes in the north country and many other sections of the nation. Smith leads the half backs this morning with a total of 59,155 votes, holding a slight edge over Notre Dame's Steve Juzwik.

REISER CRASHES INTO WALL; ARM FAILS M. COOPER

Outfielder Suffers Brain Concussion.

St. Louis, Mo., July 19 (AP).—With darkness settling over Sportsman's Park, Outfielder Enos Slaughter hit a home run inside the park to give the Cardinals a double victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers today before 34,433 fans.

The Cardinals, striving to narrow the gap between the Dodgers and themselves, scored a 7 to 6 triumph on Slaughter's climatic drive after they had taken the opener, 8 to 5.

Pete Reiser, Dodger outfielder, was injured attempting a one hand catch of Slaughter's hit. He crashed into the right center field wall after it appeared he had made the catch, and the ball dropped free. Reiser suffered a moderate concussion of the brain, Dr. Robert Hyland, Cardinal team physician, said tonight. The young player will remain in a hospital for several days. X-rays of the injury will be examined tomorrow.

Cut Dodgers' Lead to Six Games.

The double victory boosted the Cards within six games of Brooklyn in the National league standings.

The Dodgers, smarting under the defeat which Whit Wyatt had suffered in the first game, made a fighting stand for the second battle. They tied the score at 6-all in the fifth with a four run rally off John Beazley.

Put Reiser on Third in 11th.

With Max Lanier and Curt Davis finally achieving control for both clubs, the score remained tied until the 11th, even under the the determined 10th inning threat by the Dodgers, who had Reiser on third with one out.

The Cardinals then purposely passed Joe Medwick to get at Dolph Camilli. Southpaw Lanier induced Camilli, a left hand batter, to hit at Frank Crespi, who collaborated with Jimmy Brown and Ray Sanders in a double play that retired the side.

George Kurowski turned in a performance nearly as thrilling as Slaughter's in smashing two homers, one in each game, bringing his total to three in the four game series.

Cooper's Arm Ails.

Mort Cooper, Cardinal pitching star, asked to be removed from the mound in the first game after reporting pain in his pitching elbow, the elbow which underwent an operation last year. He was credited with his 12th victory, however. Six strikeouts sent his season's total to 90.

Les Webber, who relieved Wyatt in the first game, held the Cardinals in check with only two hits in 4⅔ innings, retiring 13 hitters in succession after early trouble.

The games were marked by several arguments, mostly concerning Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers and the umpires. In the third inning of the first game, Stan Musial, Cardinal outfielder, had to be restrained forcibly from charging at Webber.

Musial asserted Webber had thrown two deliberate bean balls and players of both teams quickly gathered at

WARNEKE FAILS AGAIN, BUT CUBS SPLIT WITH PHILS

Lon Routed in 8-5 Opener; Bithorn Wins, 8-4.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs frittered away the first game of their double header with the Phils yesterday, losing 8 to 5, with the winners possessed of seven unearned runs. The Chicagoans came back valiantly in the second game to win, 8 to 4, so most of the crowd of 19,182 went home from Wrigley field fairly happy, perhaps not realizing the Cubs had plunked into sixth place as a result of their loose behavior in the first game.

The second contest had some interesting developments even before it began. Manager Jim Wilson replaced Jim Foxx at first base with Rip Russell, who played second base in the first game and knocked a homer, double and a single. Wilson also benched another non-hitting favorite, Phil Cavarretta, by sending Dom Dallessandro to center. Russell contributed a double and a run in the second game and Dallessandro bashed two doubles and stole home in the fifth inning with the fourth Chicago run. It was the first time Dom ever had stolen home.

Warneke Fails Again.

Lon Warneke, making his second start since his return to the Cubs, suffered his second defeat in the first game. Hi Bithorn was the conqueror in the afterpiece, yielding only one run until the ninth, when the tail-enders dashed across with three runs on four of Philadelphia's 13 hits.

Lou Novikoff, recent batting sensation, struck a snag during the afternoon. He made one single in nine times at bat and fell slightly below .300 after a persistent slugging spree. Mathematicians figured Lou's average at .29963. Stan Hack and Bob Scheffing led the parade in the second game with homers. In addition, Stan knocked a double and a single.

The Phils never failed to take advantage of Cub errors and woolgathering to win the first game. They made 13 hits off Warneke, the losing pitcher, and his successor, Johnny Schmitz, but all of their runs except the first one were unearned. The seven tainted runs were made so by mechanical errors, two on one play by Lenny Merullo and one on an easy chance by Foxx. Nevertheless the Cubs might have won had Schmitz been wide awake on a double play setup after replacing Warneke in the fourth inning.

Schmitz Mows 'Em Down.

After getting out of the muddle he inherited in that fourth inning, Schmitz held the Phils away from the plate in the remaining five innings.

That novel earned run the Phils made in the first inning of the first

117 QUALIFY FOR 13TH TRIBUNE SWIMMING FINAL

Girls, Boys to Bid for Ten Titles Next Sunday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The field of 117 finalists who will compete next Sunday in the 13th Chicagoland 100 yard swimming races, was completed yesterday afternoon. Sectional meets were held at Whealan pool and at California park. The latter will be the site for the 10 title races Sunday, the first of which will start at 2 o'clock.

The battle for qualifying positions was waged furiously in the California park pool, the largest of the four preliminary meets. Trials also had been held Saturday afternoon in the Sherman park pool and in Cermak pool. Forty-eight boys and girls received gold qualifying medals in yesterday's races in California park. Twenty gold medals were distributed at the Whealan pool meet.

Skyline A. C. Qualifies.

The Skyline Athletic club concentrated on the California park races and qualified 8 girls and 3 boys for the title races this week. Marilyn Billquist, who won the girls' class C Chicagoland championship last year, led the Skyline qualifiers. She competed in class D for girls 17 and 18 years of age.

The Midwest Athletic club qualified five girls in the California park races. Bellfuss Natatorium and the Midwest A. C. also sent their girl stars into the finals.

In the boys' division, two former Chicagoland champions reached the next high age division since the rules of the meet, annually sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, prohibit a champion from defending his title in the same age group. Rusty Garst, Madison, Wis., 1941 class A champion, and Bob White, last year's class B winner, who now competes for the Skyline club, were the qualifiers.

Four Iowans Qualify.

Clinton, Ia., and Cedar Rapids, Ia., had four qualifiers in the California races. They are Al Stanley, class C, and Delmar Norman, class D, Clinton, Ia., and Kenneth March and L. P. Lyman, class D, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Barbara Ramser of the Shawnee Country club led the members of that squad who qualified at Whealan pool. Nancy Wilson, class A; Shirley Schweger, class B, and Alice Miller, class C, were other Shawnee girls to reach the Chicagoland championships. In the boys' division, a group of New Trier High school swimmers and former teammates netted five qualifying places in the five age classes. This north shore team won the boys' team trophy last year.

Miss Dodson Is Favorite.

Robin Middlemas of the Milwaukee, Wis., Athletic club, qualified in class D at Whealan pool. Peter Reinhardt, class E, from Rockford, Ill., and Kenosha, Wis., Youth Foundation swimmers completed the list of out of town contestants in Whealan pool. The Kenosha contestants who won gold medals in the Whealan pool races are Dorothy Schwartz and Paul Richards.

Dorothy Dodson of the Midwest A. C., who qualified at California park, is the favorite to win the class E Chicagoland championship Sunday. She is the Central AAU champion.

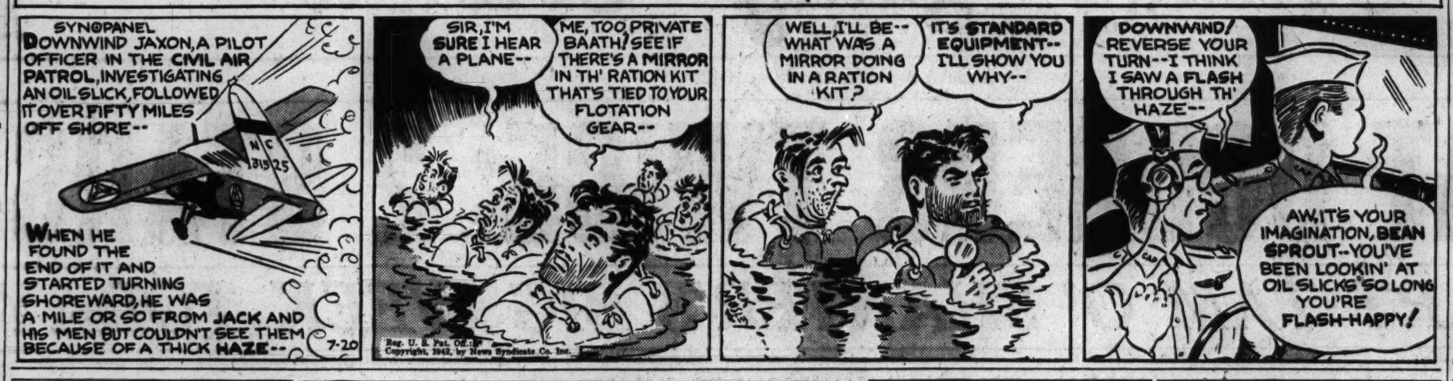
GREENBERG WINS FROM EVERT IN FOX RIVER FINAL

Neenah, Wis., July 19 (Special).—Seymour Greenberg, 1942 National Clay Courts champion, whipped Jim Evert of Chicago today in a bitterly contested match, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3, 8-6, to take the championship in the annual Fox River Valley Tennis tournament. Greenberg showed his best form of the tournament in disposing of Evert, seeded No. 2, in the meet.

The doubles finals went five sets, with Evert and Bob Smidl of River Forest, Ill., edging out Greenberg and Ben Migdow of Chicago, 4-6, 7-9, 8-6, 6-4, 7-5. Evert and Smidl are national junior doubles titleholders.

Greenberg and Migdow had eliminated Olin Parks of Mishawaka, Ind., and Bill Bauman of Chicago, 2-6, 6-2, 9-7, 6-2, earlier today to gain the final.

SMILIN' JACK—"REFLECT" ACTION



Baugh, Tinsley Give All-Stars First Victory

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Slingin' Sammy Baugh—there's a name that conjures memory of superlative forward passing—and Gaynell Tinsley were responsible for the All-Stars' first victory over the champions of professional football in the series which will be renewed Aug. 28 in Soldiers' field. Baugh tossed a perfect pass to Tinsley and by that play the Green Bay Packers were beaten 6 to 0 in the 1937 game, the fourth sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities.

Baugh and Tinsley, backed up by a fighting squad which played best when the Packers threatened, deadlocked the series. The college men had held Chicago's Bears to a scoreless tie in 1934, had been beaten 5 to 0 by the same team in 1935, and then had outplayed the Detroit Lions the following year altho the Lions' touchdown, in the final three minutes of the game, had given the professional champions a 7 to 7 tie.

Baugh Is Hero of Battle.

The All-Stars needed four games to gain their first victory, but the manner of accomplishment not only proved beyond doubt the ability of the successive groups of collegians to cope with professional veterans, but another of the nation's largest football crowds was sold on the contest. The hero of the battle was Baugh who went on to become the greatest passer in professional football as he carried the Washington Redskins to their first league triumph.

Baugh came to the All-Star squad from Texas Christian university with a college record with which the east and midwest were more or less unfamiliar. He wasn't elected to the starting lineup, but his team mates soon recognized his ability. They chose him as their captain.

Baugh also was under the shadow of the lavish praise accorded Arnie Herber of the Packers. In the league season of 1936 Herber, who was the outstanding passer in professional football, completed 77 throws for a total gain of 1,239 yards. That, then, was a league record. Moreover, Don Hutson, himself a graduate of the All-Star game in 1935, caught 34 forward passes in the National league season.

Tinsley Goes for Touchdown.

Baugh sold his mates on his uncanny passing, but reports from the Northwestern university training camp of the Stars largely were disregarded. Before a record crowd of 84,560 Baugh threw all of the collegians' forward passes. He completed 7 in 13 attempts for a total of 115 yards. One of these, in the first period, was caught by Tinsley, Louisiana State end, who carried the ball for a complete gain of 47 yards and the winning touchdown.

Credit also should be given Tinsley for his run after receiving Baugh's pass. He first eluded the Packers' Hank Bruder, and then escaped from Joe Laws' diving tackle near the side line. Altho the All-Stars' Sam Francis, Nebraska full back, failed to kick the point after the touchdown, it did not bring disaster as might easily have been the case. Green Bay repeatedly threatened—gained 343 yards and made 17 first downs—but the Packers failed to score.

SOCCER LEADERS WANT NATIONAL MEETING HELD

Soccer officials from Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, and Missouri, at an all-day meeting in the Atlantic hotel yesterday, agreed to recommend to the National Soccer association that the proposed omission of the 1942 annual meeting be reconsidered, and that midwestern states be permitted to run their own cup competitions.

A committee composed of Thure Gustafson, president of the International league; Richard Falk of Wisconsin; J. Scott Linn of Michigan; Lester Hatchard of Missouri, and Lester Vasquez of Ohio was named to present the recommendations to the National association. The committee will meet later, probably in Chicago, to appoint delegates to sit with the National association.

ROCKOLA MAIDS DEFEAT DETROIT TEAM IN 9TH, 2-1

The Rockola Music Maids scored a run in the ninth last night to defeat the Kellar Girls softball team of Detroit, 2 to 1.

In other games, the Rheingold Girls beat the Match corporation, 1 to 0; Garden City Maids beat the Dairy Girls of Louisville, Ky., 10 to 2, and the Parichy Bloomer Girls shut out the Army and Navy Bomber Girls of Regina, Canada, 5 to 0.

Naperville Captures CYO Track Meet

SS. Peter and Paul of Naperville won the senior, junior, and grammar school division titles yesterday of the annual track meet conducted by the Catholic Youth Organization on Key Branch athletic field. The Naperville athletes scored 85 points, 36 more than St. Elizabeth's defending champions, who finished second. Holy Rosary was third.

Four records were broken—one in the junior and three in the grammar school division. A distance of 43 feet, 8 inches was registered by Fred Herben, SS. Peter and Paul, in the junior 12 pound shot put event, while new grammar school records were established in the 50 yard dash by Johnny Scober, SS. Peter and Paul; in the broad jump by George Tasker, Holy Rosary; and in the 440 yard relay by SS. Peter and Paul's championship team.

Individual honors went to Fred McLurie of St. Elizabeth, who finished first in the senior 100 and 220 yard dashes; Fred Desiderio, Holy Rosary, who won the junior broad and high jumps; and George Tasker among the grammar school boys for winning both the 100 yard dash and the broad jump. Summaries:

WHITE SOX FOLD BEFORE YANKEE BATS, 9-2, 12-0

Smith Loses 16th Game; Dietrich Pounded.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 19.—The White Sox headed for home tonight with a watchful eye on the record they have built up this season while loitering in the hideout of the world champion Yankees. They were whisked off this afternoon by a breezy 9 to 2 score in the front section of a double header and then, immune to pain, they came back for the amusement of 40,785 spectators, and the titleholders rolled up their ninth straight victory by a 12 to 0 tune. It also was the Sox's ninth loss since they began visiting here this season.

Possibly because of the heat, or it could have been the Yankee power, Bill Dietrich neither lasted long nor accomplished much in the first affair. He was permitted to perform for four innings, during which seven Yanks scooted across the plate, a total far in excess of the demands of Hank Borowy.

With Dietrich apparently not the man for the job, Manager Jimmy Dykes elected to give his ailing Thornton Lee a workout. The southpaw, who previously had been in only a small portion of one league game, didn't fare badly, altho he yielded two runs.

Sixteenth Loss for Smith.

For the second, Charley Ruffing emerged from the dugout to collect his 253d American league victory and he did it quite handily what with Eddie Smith virtually helpless in an attempt to dodge his 16th spanking of the year. Little Smitty was just another Dietrich. He withstood the tropical heat and the Yankee bats for five innings, a stay so lively that nine runs scored, the first three of which Ruffing handled personally by belting a second inning homer. Later the champs picked on Ed Weiland, but in a more modest way.

Dietrich's attempt to do something about the onrushing Yanks was turned into a failure as early as the first inning. He was welcomed onto the job by Red Rolfe's fifth homer in eight days and Joe DiMaggio's 14th circuit tap of the year. There was a pass to Tom Henrich in between so the net was three runs. The Yanks went on from there. In the meantime, the Sox were able to score once on Borowy by courtesy of an error and once because Mike Tresh slipped in a two bagger behind a pass.

DiMaggio Extends Streak.

In view of the ease with which the Yanks got in front on Ruffing's three run homer in the second inning of the second act, there was only one item in which the spectators remained interested. They were waiting on a hit by DiMaggio. Smith baffled the Frisco Italian in two attempts, but when Joe showed up in the fifth he belted a single to launch the third three run incident at Smitty's expense. The importance of DiMaggio's hit was that it extended his streak to 17 games.

O, yes, we forgot to mention that Manager Dykes protested the first game, which is nothing new for Dykes. He based his beef on a claim that the Yankees, after signing and putting Rollie Hemsley to work, had kept catcher Eddie Kearse, thus putting themselves one over the 25 player limit. Before the first game Dykes asserted that a player couldn't be in the line up until 24 hours after he had signed. He found out that he was wrong so he took up the 26 player argument.

President Ed Barrow of the Yanks just laughed. He said Kearse was not in uniform, that he had been released on option to the Newark farm and that proper notice of this move as well as the Hemsley signing had been telegraphed both to American league President Will Harridge and the office of Commissioner K. M. Landis.

The White Sox started for home late tonight and will arrive there late tomorrow afternoon. They have nothing to do until Tuesday evening when they are scheduled to play the Boston Red Sox.

Allen Returns to Action in Bout Tonight

Charley Eagle.

Altus Allen, 1939 International Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, who gave Mello Bettina a hard fight in his last appearance in Chicago Stadium June 12, will return to action in a 10 round bout against Charley Eagle of Waterbury, Conn., tonight in Marigold outdoor arena, Broadway and Grace street.

Altho Allen lost the decision to Bettina, he gained considerable prestige by his performance, especially since Mello is a foremost challenger for Joe Louis' title.

Eagle, who recently observed his 28th birthday, will be making his first start in this city, but his reputation precedes him. Because Charley has been busy working in a defense plant, he has participated in only one contest thus far this year. On that occasion he conquered George Fitch, 200 pound fighter from New Haven, in New Haven Feb. 19.

Ted Morrison, St. Paul middleweight, will receive his initial Chicago test in a six round semiwindup against Johnny O'Brien. Al Walker, south side junior welterweight, will attempt to avenge a recent defeat at the hands of Bill Jordan in a five round rematch. Johnny Johnson, former amateur star, and Luther Brent are paired in six rounds, and Harold Lang, Seward park heavyweight, and Lindy Elliott are matched in four.

Charles [Gorilla] Grubmyer and Ignacio Martinez will meet in the windup bout of a wrestling show this evening in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Phil Gruber will oppose Jimmy Ricci.

PIRATES, 8-9; BRAVES, 7-0.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 19 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates climbed into fifth place today, mopping up the Boston Braves, 8 to 7 and 9 to 0, before 7,425. Elbie Fletcher's ninth inning double, driving in two mates, provided the first game margin, while Vince DiMaggio's homer, his ninth of the season, gave the Pirates a running start toward their one-sided triumph in the second game, called at the end of the eighth by Sunday law.

First Baseman Lew Gremp of the Braves was struck a glancing blow on the chin by a pitch in the first game and had to be carried from the field on a stretcher. He was not badly hurt. Scores:

DEMAND STRONG INFLATION FIGHT TO AVERT CRISIS

New Deal Officials Express Alarm.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 19.—A crisis has been reached in the battle against inflation, as demands become more persistent for the administration to abandon "politics as usual" in favor of a forceful, effective program that really will control inflation.

So far, except for an attempt to fix general price ceilings, experts agree, there has been little progress made in the President's seven point program to combat runaway prices. Even officials within the administration, including Price Administrator Leon Henderson, are expressing alarm over an imminent breakdown in the anti-inflation fight.

Members of congress, themselves accused of handicapping the program, are becoming more vigorous in demands for positive action to control industrial wages and farm prices, two fundamental items which the administration exempted from its price control law.

New Act Held Necessary.

Simultaneous warnings came today from two members of congress. Said Sen. Millard E. Tydings [D., Md.] in a radio speech:

"There is a growing belief in congress and in the country that the price control act will have to be rewritten in whole or in part. The formula in that act, which was designed to prevent inflation, is thought to be defective. There is a growing belief that it will be unworkable and ineffective for the long pull of several years of war.

"Since labor costs are a principal factor in the cost of any product, industrial or agricultural, many members of congress, and, indeed, Mr. Henderson, have from time to time pointed out that if industrial wages rise the whole price control plan will blow up and fail."

Rep. Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.], in a letter to constituents, said that a clear majority of the house is willing to stabilize, freeze, or put a ceiling on wages, and this seems to be the present attitude of Henderson, also.

"But," continued Hoffman, "so far, the President, who controls the policy of the majority party — tho he stated in his seven-point program that wages must be stabilized—has not given the nod to the majority party to vote for the very things which he said must be established in order to prevent inflation and national bankruptcy.

Knocks Plans Skyhigh.

"The only real answer will come when all forget the political aspect of the situation and put a ceiling on the price to be charged for 'things' and 'services,' the principle which was incorporated in a bill which I introduced more than a year ago, but which, like other good legislation proposed by members of the minority party, was tucked in one of the innumerable pigeonholes reserved for ideas of the opposition."

This ruling, issued in the "little steel" case, but creating a yardstick for measure all wage claims, was immediately set upon by critics as stimulating a wage increase spiral that can wreck what little results have been achieved against inflation.

Mr. Roosevelt's War Labor Board threw a bombshell into the whole muddled and bogged down anti-inflation program last week when it announced a new policy recommending that all organized groups of workers be granted a 15 per cent increase in wages over those received on Jan. 1, 1941.

British Forced Saving Studied for U.S. Action

Many Americans are studying with renewed interest the forced saving, or "deferred payment," system adopted in England last year as indications multiply that some such method may be used in this country soon. Compulsory saving was first proposed in England as a preventive of inflation by Maynard Keynes, widely known British economist, soon after the war began.

Keynes' proposals met strong opposition at first, but were finally adopted in part under the more acceptable term of deferred payment plan. Their adoption, however, was more as a method of war financing than an inflation curb. Recently the Canadian government proposed a similar plan.

Several government officials in the United States have expressed the conviction the treasury's efforts to sell war bonds on a strictly voluntary basis will fall short of both its objectives—providing a substantial part of the money needed to finance the war and mopping up surplus public purchasing power.

Various Methods Proposed.

Various methods of enforced saving have been proposed. They include increases in pay roll taxes under the social security and old age pension program; changing voluntary pay roll allotment bond purchases to a compulsory system; collection of extra payments with income tax collections, and a graduated increase in tax rates with provision for postwar credits of a part of all of the increase.

The last named method is the one being used in England, and proposed for use in Canada. Repayments after the war are designed to sustain purchasing power during the transition to a peacetime economy.

Under the British method, the very low income groups which had never paid income taxes before are credited with the full amount of the taxes paid. As income and taxes rise, the percentage set aside as a postwar credit drops rapidly, with a maximum credit of $240 a year for a single person and $260 a year for married couples.

To Be Returned After War.

A British worker whose income was the equivalent of $1,000 paid an income tax for last year of $188.50, if single, of which $47.67 was set aside as a postwar credit. If married with no children, he paid $110.50 of which $60.67 was set aside, and if married with one child his tax was $45.50, all of which was credited to him to be returned after the war.

With an income of $2,000, however, the taxes in the above cases would be $624.50, $504.50, and $404.50, of which only $106.67, $126.67, and $126.67, respectively would be returned as postwar credits.

The postwar credit reaches its maximum for all workers at an income of $10,000 under the British plan.

Canada's plan is in some ways more generous in amounts credited for return. It provides a maximum credit of $800 for single persons, $1,000 for married persons without children, and $1,200 for married persons with two children. Income taxes and postwar credits start at incomes of $700 for single persons and $2,250 for married persons. However, the postwar credit never exceeds half of the total income tax paid.

ARMY AND NAVY COMBINE HONORS FOR WAR PLANTS

Washington, D. C., July 19 (AP).—A joint army-navy flag, it was announced today, hereafter will be awarded to war factories with outstanding production records. In the past, the armed services have recognized such plants separately, the navy awarding an "E" pennant [for excellence] and the army an "A" flag.

The joint award will be a swallow-tailed flag with a white capital "E" in a yellow wreath of oak and laurel leaves on a vertically divided blue and red background. "Army" will be on the red background and "Navy" on the blue.

Employés of plants winning the award will be given silver emblems reproducing the flag in miniature.

Dr. Swanish to Quit State Post for Federal Rail Job

The resignation of Dr. Peter T. Swanish, commissioner of the division of placement and unemployment compensation since its inception five year ago, was announced yesterday by State Director of Labor Francis B. Murphy. The resignation becomes effective Aug. 14. Dr. Swanish will become director of research for the Railroad Retirement board, one of the government agencies recently moved to Chicago from Washington, D. C.

Experts Warn Country Faces Corn Shortage

BY PHILIP WARDEN.

Two men with long experience in the grain business, recognized as authorities on grain and its marketing, concurred yesterday in a prediction that the nation is facing a corn shortage. They forecast a deficit as high as 72 million bushels before the 1943 corn crop can be harvested.

One of these experts cannot be identified because he is a government statistician and his comments are not to be construed as the opinions of his department. The other is Edward C. Remick of Clement, Curtis & Co.

Needs Estimated High.

"Competent authorities estimate that next season's corn requirements will be around 3 billion 200 million bushels," the grain men reported.

"They figure the corn carryover on Oct. 1, 1942, start of the new harvest at 500 million bushels. The department of agriculture in an estimate based on July 1 conditions forecast a probable crop this year of 2 billion 628 million bushels.

"Thus the United States has in prospect a total supply of 3 billion 128 million bushels, but total corn requirements exceed this figure. Consequently, there is in prospect a deficit of around 72 million bushels.

Not a Practical Reserve.

"If by some process of alchemy the 125 million bushels of government owned wheat to be sold for feed purposes as voted by congress last week could be turned into corn it could at best make up the corn deficit and provide about a 50 million bushel reserve.

"And a mere 50 million bushel statistical reserve would be no practical reserve at all for much of it would be scattered, not readily available."

The authorities said that if the nation expects to be fighting long it had better take steps at once to expand corn production. They said that if by chance there should be a crop failure in 1943 the nation might face a serious food shortage.

LATIN COUNTRIES TO GROW CROPS LOST IN PACIFIC

The United Fruit company, after several years of experimentation with far eastern tropical crops in Central America, yesterday announced a new policy under which it will extend production there of several products formerly imported from Pacific areas now held by Japan.

Quinine, natural rubber, abaca or manila hemp, and palm oil are among the products which the company will introduce on a commercial scale. The countries chosen for the program are Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, and Panama.

"Balanced economy in middle America is dependent on the maintenance of a stable, prosperous, and contented agricultural population in those countries," the company's announcement said. "The company for several years has experimented with various commodities which might be grown by the small farmer.

"Such crops, aside from providing a new source of income for the farmer, would be a new source of supply for many commodities formerly imported from the far east and, with the projected improvements in transportation might, if necessary, be imported into the United States by rail, truck, or airplane."

JUNE VOLUME.

How did the June volume of trading on the New York Stock exchange compare with other years?—G. C.

Answer: Trading on the New York Stock exchange in June totaled 7,466,433 shares, the smallest volume for the month since 1914. With the exception of 1904 and 1912, the June volume was the smallest since 1900.

PAYMENT SUSPENDED.

When I reached the age of 65 two years ago I retired. I am now receiving social security old age benefits. I have a chance to go back to my old job with a company doing war work. What will my status be under the act if I go back to work?—J. C.

Answer: Benefit payments you are receiving now will be suspended for the period of employment should you return to work. They will be resumed after that period.

DIVIDENDS.

How much did corporate earnings decline in the first quarter from the same 1941 period. Were dividend payments on common shares correspondingly lower?—M. C.

Answer: Aggregate earnings of corporations whose common shares are listed on the New York Stock exchange declined 14.3 per cent in the first quarter from the same period last year. Aggregate common dividends in the first quarter were 1.4 per cent lower than 1941.

C. B. & Q.

Do you have the five month's net income and per share earnings of the Burlington railroad? How do they compare with last year?—F. W.

Answer: The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad earned $5,658,165, or $3.31 per share, in the five months compared with $2,622,359, or $1.53 per share, in the same 1941 period.

EXTEND DATE.

How long has the time for exchange of old 7 per cent preferred shares of Douglas Shoe for new convertible preferred and common been extended by the company?—S. B. M.

Answer: To Dec. 31, this year.

STEEL DELIVERY UPSET BY BIG PLATE DEMAND

Increasing demand for steel plates has dislocated producers' normal delivery system, some plates being sent to New England shipyards from as far away as Birmingham, Ala., the magazine Steel reported yesterday in its survey of the industry.

"The most disquieting feature of the situation is the practical certainty of an insufficient scrap supply next winter," the publication reported. "Consumption to sustain near-peak steel output is using all available tonnage and melters who had been able to accumulate stocks are using them to maintain production."

Steel operations advanced ½ point last week to 98 per cent of estimated national ingot capacity, the magazine said, "only scarcity of scrap and necessity for furnace repairs preventing a higher rate."

FEAR EVENTUAL LACK OF POWER FOR WAR DRIVE

Brookings Forecast Asks Conservation.

Washington, D. C., July 19 (AP).—The Brookings institution predicted today an eventual power shortage "sufficient to impede the war production effort" unless "conservation and more effective power utilization is undertaken in the immediate future."

A report prepared for the private research organization by Dr. Louis Marlio, French economist and engineer, now a member of its staff, estimated power requirements in 1944—if the war continued that long—would be nearly 50 per cent in excess of those in 1941.

New Capacity Needed.

"In spite of all the efforts that may be put forth in the technical and administrative field, and with the curtailment of domestic consumption, the existing generating capacity will not be able to meet the added requirements," Marlio said.

"The increase in power demand in the present year has been moderate due to the fact that the country is in a period of transition from peace to war production. However, many of the plants which will require large quantities of electric power are not yet completed, and as they come into production power demands will steadily mount."

Placing 1941 production at 212 billion kilowatt hours, Marlio estimated requirements for subsequent years as follows: 1942, 249 billion; 1943, 285 billion; 1944, 305 billion, and 1945, 326 billion kilowatt hours.

Saving Thru Curtailment.

Marlio estimated 7 billion kilowatt hours could be saved by curtailment of nonindustrial consumption, and that 20 billion additional kilowatt hours could be produced and utilized by existing generating capacity. The deficit, he said, could be made up only by a large program of power development. Some of this program already is under way and can be completed in a year and a half, but the remainder will require an additional year, he said.

Commenting on the Brookings report, C. W. Kellogg, president of the Edison Electric Institute, said that in his judgment and that of government officials the power supply would prove ample for all purposes in 1942 and that prospects for adequate power in 1943 were "generally favorable." The War Production board, he said, had decided to defer installation of some scheduled generating equipment in order to save critical materials.

WALL PAPER COMPANY DISCLOSES SHIFT TO BOMB MANUFACTURE

United Wallpaper Factories, Inc., Chicago, disclosed in a letter being mailed to stockholders today that for more than six months it has been manufacturing bombs and other munitions. William H. Yates, president, explained that military censorship until recently prevented the company from identifying itself publicly with munitions production. The company turned out some of the incendiary bombs dropped on Tokio, he said.

"Even now, we cannot say where the war production plants are located, other than to state they are not the ones turning out wallpaper," Yates said. "Even tho we have war contracts that exceed 75 per cent of the dollar volume of our normal annual wallpaper business, the company's wallpaper mills are continuing to manufacture at customary levels."

Figures indicate that wallpaper volume for the company's fiscal year ended June 30 was about equal to that of the preceding year, he said.

Massachusetts Investors Trust Assets Show Gain

The Massachusetts Investors Trust reported yesterday that its net asset value per share increased to $14.61 on June 30, from $14.22 at the end of the March quarter. The trust purchased 1 million dollars of United States treasury bills during the last quarter.

THE WORLDS GREATEST NEWSPAPER

ONE OF THE HARDSHIPS OF WAR

McCUTCHEON

This is an enlargement of one of John T. McCutcheon's most popular and significant color cartoons. Emphasizing the importance of relatives and friends writing to men away from home in the army or navy services as a means of keeping up morale, this cartoon, presented thus in poster form at popular request, is suitable for display anywhere that it may be seen by those inclined to be negligent in their war correspondence. A cheerful letter from home is a lift for a homesick soldier or sailor. This is brought out by the fact that a number of men in the services have urged The Tribune to reproduce the cartoon in poster form.
